WE NOMINATE

John Cornelius Houbolt, a brilliant space scientist-engineer and a Princetonian for the past seven years—who, as an admiring world anxiously awaits word of a successful splashdown for the Apollo 9 astronauts, must be numbered among the unsung heroes of the United States space program. Elated NASA officials now admit that without the 49-year old Houbolt's contributions, and his lonely campaign in the early 1960's, this country would not now be standing on the doorstep to the moon and that Apollo 9 would not have "already exceeded our most optimistic expectations in bringing off the most complicated and dangerous space maneuver ever attempted by any one, American or Russian."

In 1961 Houbolt, now Senior Vice President and Senior Consultant of Aeronautical Research Associates of Princeton, Inc., was chief of the Theoretical Mechanics Division of NASA, one of the vast crew of scientists devoted to finding the best way of getting an American to the moon. There was, it is recalled great and bitter disagreement in NASA in those days over how the Apollo program should be carried out. There were three separate groups — one advocating a direct earth-to-moon landing and another pushing for a rendezvous of two capsules in earth's orbit prior to the moon launch, the latter requiring two Saturn rockets and the former a rocket the size of the Washington Monument.

The third group, much smaller and almost on the outer fringe of the Apollo program, was headed by Houbolt. It wanted a Lunar Orbit Rendezvous, with a light craft leaving the main capsule, touching down on the moon and then returning the astronauts to the main craft for the trip back to earth. It was the third, or Houbolt, concept which was so dramatically and effectively tested late last week on the Apollo 9 flight — Houbolt's idea fulfilled, with the lunar module (LM), which will actually tote men to the moon, working as flawlessly as the rest of the Saturn 5 hardware and adding two new words to our space lexicon, Spider and Gumdrop.

A native of Altoona, Iowa, and the father of three daughters, Houbolt joined ARAP (headquartered in Princeton Junction) in 1963 following 21 years with NASA at its Langley Research Center and after he had been honored with a Rockefeller Public Service Award, one of the highest distinctions which can be conferred upon a careerist in the Federal Service. Internationally known for his work in the fields of civil, aeronautical and space-flight engineering, this product of the University of Illinois has written well over 60 technical reports, many of fundamental significance.

In his out-of-the-laboratory life, when not wrestling with such problems as "gust encounter, structural response of reentry vehicles to boundary layer noise and analysis of the intensity and spectral content of turbulent boundary layers and wakes," he is as versatile as he is in science. He is a topnotch pilot (who "wishes I were one of the pilots on Apollo 9"), sails, plays a good game of tennis and skis on both snow and water. Over the past weekend, making efficient use of his home machine shop, he actually completed 14 of the 21 chores assigned by his wife and daughters!

For his part in achievements that "have revolutionized much of our lives at home, at work, in hospitals and in study halls"; for helping extend man's horizons beyond the earth to the outer reaches of space; for prompting one NASA official to comment: "I just thank my lucky stars that guys like Houbolt come along"; he is TOWN TOPICS' nominee as

STUDY HALL? WELL, YES . . . Students at Princeton High are often stored in the auditorium for study hall. Teachers point to lack of desks, lack of proper lighting and general lack of conditions conducive to study. It's all part of an old, overcrowded school; see "This Is Princeton."

This Is Princeton

THAT OLD HIGH SCHOOL

Middle-age Sag. A householder with eight kids in a three-bedroom, 42-year-old house begins to wonder whether he shouldn't look around for something easier to live in and less expensive to maintain.

It's the same at Princeton High School. "Something must be done soon about the high school building," stated Superintendent Philip E. McPherson at last month's community meeting on the high school. "No question about it — you can't function forever in this facility," says Principal Kenneth E. Michael any time you bring the subject up.

One member of the administrative staff says gloomily, "Putting money into this old building is like pouring water into a barrel full of holes."

Elbow Room. The old part of Princeton High was built in 1927 — 42 years ago. The new part is only 13 years old — it was built in 1956.

Overcrowding? The plant capacity is 1,500. The plant population is 1,800 — 300 more lively, shouting, pulsing teenagers than anybody has room for.

"We strongly advise the Board of Education to take immediate steps to relieve the overcrowding," urged the Middle Atlantic States evaluation committee in its recent report.

The departure of some 350 students from sending districts "will only bring us back to the overcrowding we had two years ago," says William Karch, manager of facilities services for the school system.

The buildings, 1956 as well as 1927 vintage, were designed for old-style curriculums. "Overcrowding causes our biggest problem: with every classroom used every single period of the day, there's no chance to be flexibile," says Mr. Michael.

In the smaller areas like classrooms, he explains, two teachers can't combine classes for a joint session because there isn't any place they can go. Or, a teacher can't split his class in half for a specific project.

In the large areas like the library, the two gyms and the auditorium, there just isn't enough room to handle the number of kids in the school today.

"Teachers in gyms or the library are always working under adverse conditions," Mr. Michael says. "They just can't offer the kids the kind of program they'd like to offer."

Study halls are held in the auditorium four periods a day. "Study?" Mr. Michael laughs at that one. "It's really just a place to store kids until the next period. How can you study in an auditorium seat with no place to write and bad lighting?"

"If our library facilities were good," Mr. Michael continues, "kids would go there for quiet study, or to use some of that great new audio-visual stuff we haven't room for, or maybe to work on the school paper . . ."

The relocatable buildings — the "outhouses" — provide ten classrooms. They are all right, Mr. Michael concedes, but they take students in and out of the main building with muddy feet; they make students late for classes and "they add up to a lot of aggravation."

Most classrooms are big enough, but it's in the halls that overcrowding really becomes ominous. When that main intersection gets jammed with traffic, tempers begin to climb, and overcrowding becomes a contributing factor in student tensions and disturbances.

"There's automatic irritation when that intersection gets jammed," Mr. Michael admits. "It happens with students and teachers both, about eight times a day!"

Outside, "the site is already a problem," Mr Michael observes, looking out the window at the lack of parking spaces. The school is even now below state requirements for outside square-footage per pupil, so adding to the present building would only compound the problem.

About the Building. "Remodeling that building is murder," shudders Mr. Karch. "It's expensive to knock out any part of walls, floors or ceiling. You need a new, modern building with chaseways," (sections of walls or ceilings channeled with access to wires and plumbing).

"In a 42-year-old building, it's hard to replace valves and maybe you have to replace them because they've been unused for 40 years, and they just don't work. We've had a hard time buying replacements for the thermostats, the building is so old."

Two years ago, when the school got its first new biology lab, the state required rewiring even in the new 1956 area.

"This wasn't for safety," Mr. Karch explains, "it was simply to provide better illumination and reduce glare. Lights in both wings of the school are out of date. Our teachers want 500-watt illumination instead of the 300-watts we have now, but the system just won't cope with that."

Sleek and Clean. A new school building would be cheaper to keep clean, Mr. Karch believes. Terrazzo floors, like those in the new Timberlane school in Hopewell, are expensive to install but cheap to maintain. No sealers, no wax required. Epoxy-finish walls are practically indestructible.

Meanwhile, Mr. Karch's crew, led by Charles Van Note, former cabinet-maker who is maintenance foreman, is trying to live with it all.

"When we paint, we use light colors — they don't add seats, but they make a room seem larger," Mr. Karch explains.

In the girls' gym where west-facing windows make afternoon classes almost impossible, Mr. Karch hopes to install tubular slats that will cut down glare but let in air. He thought of covering those windows with brown paper, but they are leaded Gothic glass and brown paper didn't work.

"What gives us real concern," and the manager for facilities services shakes his head, "is the length of time it will take to get a new school building. Even with everything going smoothly — it will take at least four to five years. And between now and then. . . ."

Stood Up for Books!

Twice during the day on Saturday, the Princeton Public Library was "standing-room-only," reports librarian Robert Staples. This means that chairs at study tables, chairs at reference tables and just plain lounge chairs were all taken.

That same day, the library circulated 2,200 books, making a total of 10,500 books during the first eight days of March. Every Saturday since the first of the year, the library has circulated at least 2,000 books, Mr. Staples reports.

January-February of 1969, the library is circulating 8% ahead of the first two months of 1968, which were in turn, 8% ahead of 1967.

PROM WEEKEND MARRED

By Shooting, Muggings, Fire. Borough police have as much reason to remember the junior prom weekend just passed as any student at the University. The campus was the scene of a shooting, a number of assaults and a fire.

The shooting took place around 12:30 Sunday morning outside The Womb, a campus nightclub located in the basement of Murray-Dodge Hall. Police identified the victim as 18 year-old Robert Brooks, 39 Clay Street, a student at Princeton High School.

Shot in the left foot just above the toes with a small caliber bullet, Brooks was taken to Princeton Hospital for treatment and later brought to police headquarters for questioning. Police said he had been drinking.

Brooks said later he had been shot by Nathaniel Wiliams, a former friend of his who had lived with him at 39 Clay before moving to Trenton, Borough police sent out an alarm for Williams, whose last known address was 106 Humbolt Street, charging him with atrocious assault and battery. He fled after the shooting, police said.

Chief Peter J. McCrohan said that Williams was described as being dangerous because he allegedly had threatened to shoot several other people the same night. According to police, Williams and Brooks apparently had an argument in the Womb and one invited the other to go outside and settle it.

Professor's Son Assaulted. Two minutes after midnight that same morning, a Princeton University professor called police to report that his 15-year-old son had been assaulted by a gang of youths as he was riding his bicycle through campus near Dillon Gym.

According to police, the boy was stopped by seven Negro youths. One asked him for money and he said he had none. Immediately, two of the gang knocked him from his bike to the ground, jumped on him and started to punch and kick him. Police report that two others in the gang pulled his attackers off and they all fled.

"His injuries were very visible," said Chief McCrohan. The youth, who told police he had done nothing to provoke the attack, received a punctured lip, chest injuries and a bump on the back of his head. He was treated by his family physician.

"It just goes to show the incidents that are happening all the time on McCosh walk," Chief McCrohan said. "I've been predicting it and I'll predict it again. It's just starting."

Called by Parents. "Parents call me, asking if their kid should be on campus. You don't have to be a police officer to know that a 15-year-old girl has no business being on campus.

"What gets me is these young kids are going over there and the University's not doing anything about it. They just don't care!"

The student paper, "The Daily Princetonian" also reported in its Monday issue the mugging of four students over the weekend on campus. The paper said each followed the same basic pattern.

A student was approached by a group of Negroes and asked for a cigarette or money. Upon refusing, he was assaulted. The victims were quoted as saying their attackers were not Princeton students.

A general alarm was sounded at 2:37 Sunday morning for a fire in Gauss Hall. Apparently, someone set fire to a bundle of newspapers on a hallway landing. Damage was slight.

Six pieces of fire apparatus and an ambulance rushed to the scene. "When we get an alarm for a fire in a dormitory in the middle of the morning, we don't take any chances," said Chief McCrohan. "We sound a general alarm."

He added: "It doesn't seem like much, but it's a good way to kill somebody."

SDS PROMOTES OPEN USE Of Campus Social Centers. Two members of the Students for a Democratic Society sponsored a public meeting Thursday evening in the Princeton Youth Center, attended by about 50 teenagers and 15 parents. The session was held to give black residents an opportunity to discuss their grievances with Princeton University.

The meeting stemmed from the arrest last month of three Princeton youths on charges of trespassing in the University's student center. The SDS, with graduate students Robert A. Nerenberg and William H. Tucker as its spokesmen, is pressing for open social facilities at the University for the entire community.

Prior to the meeting, a conference was held by Harold G. Logan, president of the Youth Center adult board, Carl A. Fields, assistant dean of the college, and the two SDS representatives, meeting in Dr. Fields' office.

The SDS later charged Dr. Fields with attempting to bring pressures on it to cancel the public meeting. The two graduate students also claimed that Dr. Fields was "racist in belittling the black community" in his attitude towards relationships between townspeople and the University.

Dr. Fields, a black, said in response that the SDS statements were a "typical SDS distortion of facts." He claimed that if there is feeling in the black community about the student center incident, it is up to the community to register that feeling itself, and that he was uneasy with SDS attempting to act for the community.

Dr. Fields is a member of an impromptu committee composed of students and members of the administration which is attempting to form a new policy for community use of University social facilities.

VOTE ON SCHOOL MERGER

West Windsor, Plainsboro. Voters in West Windsor and Plainsboro will go to the polls Tuesday, April 22, to vote on whether the two school systems should form a kindergarten - through - 12th - grade district on July 1.

A brochure describing regionalization will be sent to all West Windsor residents early in April and a public hearing on the referendum will be held in the Maurice Hawk School on Tuesday, April 15.

A joint committee from the two communities, after exploring regionalization for two years, proposed a joint regional district a few weeks ago.

The new regional school board, if the referendum passes, would continue the planning now being done for a joint West Windsor-Plainsboro high school.

Both municipalities have been told by the Princeton Regional School Board that their students at Princeton High School will have to leave by 1970. West Windsor has about 300 students at Princeton High and Plainsboro about 60.

In the new regional system, West Windsor will have seven board members and Plainsboro two, based on the 1960 census. When 1970 census figures are available, the representative will be based on the new cnunt.

The new board will be chosen by Edward Callahan, Mercer County Superintendent of Schools, and Robert Blunt, superintendent for Middlesex County. Plainsboro is in Middlesex.

OPPOSES HOUSING

Says Councilman Carrick. Charging that Princeton Community Housing, Inc., the non-profit middle-income housing corporation, was asking the Borough to underwrite "bonanza rentals for a token number of moderate-income people" and had not fully informed the public of its plans, Borough Councilman Alan Carrick announced at Council meeting Tuesday night his opposition to P.C.H.'s housing proposals.

In a lengthy, figure-filled statement, Mr. Carrick said he based his opposition on P.C.H.'s request for a tax break, and he charged that the tenants would be selected and the rent set "by a private corporation with a guiding hand from Trenton."

Pointing to the Borough-owned parking lots on Witherspoon and Spring, where P.C.H. would like to build, Mr. Carrick said P.C.H. "seeks to pay on a ground lease running for 50 years, a sum very considerably less than the annual rental value of the land."

The tax break suggested by P.C.H. is payment-in-lieu-of-taxes amounting to 15% of the gross rentals of the 78 apartment units proposed for the pair of sites.

Mr. Carrick said the 15% would bring the Borough $17,000 a year. To this, he added the $6,000 P.C.H. would pay to lease the actual land, and the $87,000 in parking revenues from the garages that would be built as part of the project for a total of $110,000 yearly income to the Borough.

This figure would be offset, he said, by the $55,000 the Borough would pay to lease the garages, plus the loss of current revenue from the two parking lots and the cost of upkeep for the garages.

"I remain in favor of moderate income housing for Princeton but if it is to be placed in the Borough, I shall support it only when it pays taxes and asks for no hidden subsidy," Mr. Carrick said in a prepared statement.

He speculated whether the Borough Planning Board, in a resolution to Council affirming board support of middle income housing, really knew what it was doing.

"The Planning Board must have been switching financial responsibility off on Council when it gave that recommendation" Mr. Carrick charged. He is a member of the Planning Board.

Board Member Pledges. Arthur Morgan, Planning Board member and former chairman, defended the board's approving resolution.

"We knew what we were doing," Mr. Morgan said. "Where P.C.H. plans are concerned, we are interested but not convinced: the financial side will determine the answer."

Mr. Morgan reminded Council that the board has favored middle-income housing for about three years, and has been pushing for parking garages for a long time.

"The Planning Board thinks this proposition might answer both those needs," Mr. Morgan said. "The proposals deserve very careful consideration by everyone. This middle-income housing could be a very big addition to the community."

P.C.H. itself was not present. Theodore Vial, president of the organization, said earlier that P.C.H. was still collecting the figures necessary for a presentation to Council. The organization has been told by the state that informal Council approval is necessary before the next installment of seed money can be paid.

Another Site? Councilman Charles Cornforth said he objected to the Witherspoon-Spring site, and warned that 78 apartments in the heart of town could generate more traffic.

Mr. Morgan replied that a site farther out of the Borough's center wouldn't be feasible for parking garages.

When F. C. Curran, 50 Murray Place, seconded Mr. Carrick's charge that the public had not been informed of P.C.H.'s detailed plans, Mr. Morgan said the organization "had leaned over backwards" to keep all municipal agencies informed.

Need Questioned. "Why do we need middle-income housing in Princeton?" asked Robert MacMillan, 167 Hamilton Avenue. "Why should the taxpayers carry this for other people?"

"The need has been repeatedly expressed over many years," replied Mayor Henry S. Patterson. "Council doesn't have any facts yet to show whether this would be a drain on the taxpayer or not."

Councilman James Andrews said, "Studies have shown that middle-income people like police and teachers, cannot afford to live here," and he cited special legislation obtained from the state allowing Princeton police to live outside the town.

Speaking of the land-value of the parcel, Mr. Andrews said the Borough's purchase price, or its assessed valve now is "irrelevant." "That land will never be turned to commercial use," he said.

Mayor Patterson added that nobody yet knows how much Public Service will ask for a strip of land it owns which is essential to the project.

Budget Passed. Earlier, Council passed the budget. The estimated overall tax rate is $6.71, up 14% from last year. The municipal slice is up eight cents, from $1.32 to $1.40; school tax is $3.23; County, $2.03; veterans, 5c.

Hamilton Avenue, asked for some assurance that the error which has caused Borough school taxes to leap this year, wouldn't happen again.

Councilman Robert Hendry said the schools have agreed to check out their population figures each year with Borough and Township administrators.

Mr Hendry said he disapproved a salary increase granted to the health officer, David Blake, because of "his performance during the year." He said he was disappointed that the health officer couldn't think up a plan, when the Borough was offered state health funds, although he later remarked that Princeton had a venereal disease problem.

Orren Jack Turner, vice president of the Board of Health, said the salary increase covered the officer's additional duties as housing officer. "You don't get much out of an individual when you give him a title and no money," Mr. Turner observed.

Councilman Alice Male, reporting on the welfare department, said that increasing numbers of boys and girls under 21 are turning up on welfare because they have been thrown out of their homes for narcotics use, and are too young to be self supporting.

STUDENT FOUND DEAD

In Graduate College Room. Detective Robert McAvenia, Lt. Michael Carnevale and Ptl. Charles Harris of the Borough police are continuing their investigation of the death of a 23 year-old graduate student.

Borough police were notified by University police at 10:17 Monday morning after they had received a call from a janitor saying he had discovered a man who looked as if he were dead in Room 3323 of the Graduate College. Police identified the body as that of Charles E. Lord, a second year chemistry student. A graduate of the University of Virginia, he was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Columbus E. Lord of Arlington, Va.

An autopsy was performed by Deputy Mercer County Physician Matthew Lapin. Although it will be several days before Dr. Lapin will be able to analyze fully all the blood samples, chief Peter J. McCrohan revealed that Dr. Lapin had issued a preliminary report listing the cause of death as asphyxiation.

Mr Lord was found lying in his bed. Chief McCrohan reported that apparently he had constructed an apparatus which had tubes running from two cylinders to a masklike device covering his head. In one tank, he said, was oxygen. The other was believed to have contained nitrous oxide or "laughing gas," pending an analysis from a laboratory.

He may have been conducting some kind of experiment," said Chief McCrohan.

"We have nothing to lead us to suspect there was foul play," Chief McCrohan added. He reported that the victim had left no notes.

Something's Missing

St. Patrick's Day
Will make the scene,
But where is there
A bit of green?

Spring, scheduled to arrive next Thursday, seems weeks behind. The scene is still almost entirely white and the thermometer's trip into the teens this week could hardly be considered a thaw.

It will grow a bit milder by Thursday, but not much, with the forecast through the weekend again calling for temperatures below normal. Just to keep things even more normal, another storm center is moving in this direction from the southwest for possible Saturday or Sunday arrival.

YOUTH GETS 20 DAYS

For Assaulting Officer. An 18 year old youth was sentenced to 20 days in the Mercer County Workhouse Monday by Judge Theodore T. Tams Jr., after he pleaded guilty to assaulting a Borough patrolman.

Tony Brown, who gave his address as the Princeton Inn, had been charged with assault by Ptl. Victor Fasanella. According to police, Brown, accompanied by a girl, had refused Saturday afternoon to pay his and her check totalling $1.39 at Buxton's, a luncheonette at 94 Nassau Street. The girl called to Ptl. Fasanella to make Brown pay.

Ptl. Fasanella came into the restaurant from the street and Brown took a swing at him. The officer ducked and Brown's blow landed on his chest. Lt. Fasanella then summoned Ptl. Timothy Huizing for help and the two managed to subdue him.

Brown was also charged with attempting to defraud a restaurant. Judge Tams dismissed that charge for lack of proof.

MOTOR PARTS ENTERED

Cash Drawer Taken. Princeton Motor Parts, 190 Witherspoon Street, was entered this week by a thief who removed a cash drawer from a register and also took a $50 check.

Borough police received a report of the theft at 7:54 Tuesday morning. Ptl. James Agins investigated and reported that entry was made by breaking a window on the south side of the building. It was not known how much money was in the cash drawer.

Y Entered Again. At 4:27 Tuesday morning, police received a call from Rudolph Tessein, building superintendent of the YMCA, reporting that the Y had been broken into and its offices ransacked.

Sgt. Robert Anderson and Patrolmen Anthony Ranfone and Gerald Patterson investigated. They reported that a brick had been used to smash a window on the north side of the building leading to the offices. They added the intruder also tried to enter the snack bar but failed.

It was not immediately determined what had been taken. It was the third time within recent weeks that the Y offices have been ransacked.

Albert Pressler, an employee of M. Benton and Associates, 12 Nassau Street, reported to police Thursday the theft of an automatic adding and multiplying machine from the firm's office.

Police said that there was no sign of forced entry. No value was placed on the machine by the owner.

Twice More at Center. The Youth Center on the corner of Witherspoon and Green streets was entered twice last week—

TO LEND YOU MONEY FOR ANY WORTHWHILE PURPOSE

All too often families and businesses get the impression that borrowing money is a one-way street. That only loan applicants need be checked and interviewed and scrutinized. We don't feel that way at Princeton's First National. We think you should feel free to ask us some questions and give us a careful going-over before you apply for a loan, because where you borrow makes a big, big difference. Stop in today at any of our offices (there are Loan Officers waiting to be looked over at all three) and ask about a loan. Whether you need money for a new car, a major appliance, home improvements, business purposes or whatever, we'd be happy to serve you. And honored, too.

The play will be given at the Cranbury School this Saturday, and at the John Witherspoon School, March 22.

News Of The THEATRES

. . . . . IN THE FAMILY

O'Casey and the Abbey. When Brendan Burke, of the McCarter company, stepped forward to direct "The Plough and the Stars" and to play the leading role of Fluther, he was merely carrying on in the name of the family.

Mr. Burke and his family have been closely associated with the plays of Sean O'Casey. Mr. Burke's father-in-law often played Fluther, and was the original "Jack Clitheroe" in the first performance of the play in 1929. His mother-in-law played "Bessie Burgess" in the film version of the play.

"The Plough and the Stars" will enter McCarter's repertory as the last play of the season, on Friday, March 21, at 8:30

Mr. Burke, this season, has played the lead in "Charley's Aunt," Jaques in "As You Like It" and Baron Tusenbach in "The Three Sisters."

A native of Dublin, he has been associated with Dublin's Gate Theatre, the Abbey Theatre and the Radio Eireann Repertory Company. He has also worked with Sir Tyrone Guthrie.

VANDERBEEK, IN PERSON

With His Films. Stan Vanderbeek will bring his films, some new and some in-progress, to McCarter Theatre next Wednesday, March 19, at 8 p.m., for McCarter's "New Cinema" series.

One of the films will be "Breathdeath," Vanderbeek's most important single-projector film, which was made with a Ford Foundation grant. He calls it "an experiment that deals with the photoreality and surrealism of life."

Sometimes called "the Tom Swift of the Underground," Vaederbeek combines social commentary with black humor and technical innovations. He began as a maker of college films and has recently become involved with "expanded cinema" and computer films.

FOR CHILDREN . . .

(Adults Can Come, Too.)

The Paper Bag Players from New York will give two Easter vacation performances for children in McCarter Theatre on Saturday, April 12.

The "Bags," as they are called, will present an original production, "Dandelion," especially designed for ages five through 12. "Dandelion" will be given at 11 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.

In place of sets, the "Bags" use every day objects like paper bags, pillow cases or cardboard boxes.

In place of the usual storybook tales, they present original sketches, stories, songs, dances, jokes, mimes and music.

An Obie award, the off-Broadway equivalent of the Tony, recognized the "Bags'" achievement in "raising the level of children's theatre through intelligence, imagination and respect for the audience."

REGIONAL BALLET READY

For March Performance. A jazz ballet, two children's ballets and the classic "Les Sylphides" will be on the program for the March 23 appearance in McCarter Theatre of the Princeton Regional Ballet.

The dancers will appear in a matinee performance at 3 p.m. as the fourth event in McCarter's dance series. The artistic director of the Princeton Regional Ballet is Audree Estey.

"Les Sylphides" has been restaged for this presentation by Ila Popper Brunner from Fokine's original choreography. The children's ballets are "Peter and the Wolf," choreographed by Audree Estey and "Circus," with choreography by Nels Jorgensen.

The jazz ballet is "Prisms" by Jerry Ross. Lila Popper Brunner's "But a Moment" will round out the program.

Scene: McCarter; Cast: 113 Happy School Kids

Backstage at McCarter . . . the tingling, mysterious darkness behind all the magic . . .

That was the scene Wednesday afternoon for 113 youngsters from the Princeton Regional Schools' "Wednesday Program."

McCarter's staff had prepared for 30 boys and girls. First, a surprising 70 of them showed up, piling into the Lower Lobby with high and excited voices, ready for the backstage tour and the subsequent performance of "Charley's Aunt."

Then, another 43 appeared, just in time for the first act curtain, but too late to see backstage.

The file of 70 clomped through McCarter's lower level, peeking into offices, extending a forbidden finger to touch a costume and hoping nobody was looking, catching a quick and awed look at the big shop where all the scenery comes from.

"I think this is where scripts are made," said one girl to her friend.

The children were fourth-fifth grade or early Middle School, with a scattering down to first-grade and only a few as old as upper Middle or high school.

You're On! Backstage they went, prowling in the darkness behind the "Charley's Aunt" set.

"It's like a haunted house!" was one excited whisper.

"One time I remember," a boy said to nobody in particular, "one time they had stairs back here, going all the way up to the top of the stage!"

Grady Clarkson, of the McCarter company, was on hand for an in-depth interview. He explained that he raised the curtain and kept an eye on the lights and was prepared to prompt actors who forgot their "Charley's Aunt" lines.

"But I've never had to do that—nobody has forgotten," Mr. Clarkson said.

"Do you ever get the lights mixed up?" somebody asked.

"I suppose," said a teacher-type, "I supoose there's always a reason the curtain sometimes goes up late and we have to sit in the audience impatiently waiting."

Mr. Clarkson said yes, sometimes one of the big busloads of school children from far away, would be delayed in traffic.

Then everybody went into the big rehearsal room to meet Kathryn Walker and Robert Blackburn, actors in the McCarter company, and to ask questions.

"Do you wear a mask?"

"Only in 'Oedipus', because actors wore masks in early Greek times," explained Mr. Blackburn. "Mostly we wear make-up to exaggerate our features. Otherwise, under those bright lights we would look washed out."

"I am still wearing make-up from this morning," added Miss Walker. She plays the real Charley's Aunt.

How old were you when you began to act?" "Seventeen." Miss Walker replied.

"Do you need training or special qualifications?" "The best way to learn is just to act," replied Mr. Blackburn, and then he added somewhat ruefully that many actors today thought they didn't need much training "and this is bad!" Mr. Blackburn, shrewdly eyeing his young audience, observed that, when an actor has to be in many kinds of plays ,it's very helpful to have a firm background in history and literature.

"How do you make your voice sound old?" "Well, you think about all the qualities your character would have," explained Miss Walker, "and the voice naturally becomes part of the character."

"How is it I can hear you way up in the balcony?" "Training!" exclaimed Miss Walker. "We talk loud!" said Mr. Blackburn at the same time.

Then it was time to go upstairs, hand in your ticket to the usher and settle down for the performance of "Charley's Aunt."

As the boys and girls were passing out of the rehearsal room, Mrs. Betty Liveright, who had been directing the production, brought everything to a ringing close: "Somebody" she shouted, has dropped his ticket!"

"DO YOU HAFTA STUDY TO ACT?" Kathryn Walker and Robert Blackburn, actors in the McCarter company, answer the questions of school children during a "Wednesday Program" tour of McCarter.

"AN IRISH FAUSTUS"

Intime Premiere. Theatre Intime presented last weekend the American premiere of Lawrence Durrell's play, "An Irish Faustus."

The script is a potpourri of themes and ideas from several good plays. It is partly a morality play and, at its best, an extremely theatrical work about vampires, conjuring, and interestingly evil people.

Fused into one single work, however, nothing is wholly satisfying. Ideas are introduced and immediately discarded for something else. There are scenes which sug-

IT'S NEW To Us

SPRING'S A WEEK AWAY
So Perk Up Your Wardrobe.

Spring begins next Thursday, and we headed for the Robert Hall store on U.S. 1 with the whole family in mind.

For women, the knitted dresses and the coats are particularly interesting. The knits are pure wool, eminently wearable, packable. One three-piece ensemble features an olive green skirt and shell, with grouped horizontal bars of green and yellow on the beige jacket. ($26.88)

Another style came in Copenhagen blue, double-breasted with eight flat brass buttons accenting the windowpane crossweave of white. You may especially like the platinum knit edged in dark brown at the collar and pockets, with a brown and white stripped shell. ($29.99)

The coats are mainly double breasted this year, and Robert Hall has some easy-to-walk in designs that feature stitched pleats falling from the side rear seam or below the pocket. You'll find rought weaves in white and spring pastel shades, star checks in blue and white tweed or yellow and white.

We admired a platinum rough weave of a slubbed fabric known as "Balenca," made of cotton and rayon in a good weight for spring. A youthful navy coat, in a feminine version of the peajacket, comes with a standout taffeta lining of kelly green. The coats in general are soft shades or white and off-white, perfect topper for the way-out prints that are so chic this season. (About $25.)

You'll like the spring season shifts, be-ruffled jabots below softly-rounded collars, long, full sleeves gently caught at the cuffs. Robert Hall has them in eye-catching prints and vivid solids. Some are made of dainty Dacron polyester and rayon, or open-weave rayon and lento cotton — so your ironing problem is negligible. (About $4).

It is going to be a season of romantic styles for little girls, and Robert Hall's dresses for your daughter are as dainty as a flower garden. For instance, a sheer print of big, beautiful daisies and aqua leaves against a soft green background, laced-edged at the neck and sleeve, and generously gathered below the front smocking. ($3.99) Or, a yellow knit, trimmed on the mao collar and above the low pleats with a band of embroidered yellow roses. ($6.99)

We saw the new-style jumper, held by five large rings at the shoulder paired with a long sleeved white blouse with a pleated lace collar. ($6.99) You'll find enchanting prints in batiste, some with blue predominating, others yellow. They are cut full below high yokes and deep hemmed.

Coats for the girls start from warm little toppers for toddlers, such as a yellow knit with a deep, scallopped collar and matching bonnet ($8.99), or a blue knit with a scattering of embroidered flowers on the curving front yoke. We found in size five a navy poodle cloth coat, collared in white, generously cut and warm for early spring days. ($10.99) And lively checks in a double-collar coats, with jaulty little hats to complement. ($11.99)

In the men's and boys' wear section of the store you'll find a big sign that says "free alterations on men's and boys' clothing," which is a comforting thing to know, particularly if your son is an in-between size.

Boys' tweed jackets come in both conservative and sporty weaves, priced at about $15. The summer seersucker jackets are in, and it might be wise to buy one early. And boys' styles this year feature double-breasted suits with fascinating print linings — we were quite taken by them. (Priced at about $21).

And if your son has heard of Edwardian suits, you'll find them in sizes 10 to 14 at Robert Hall — double-breasted, deep side vents, slim pants and all— in a linen-like fabric in green, blue or mustard. ($17.95)

The store has about all you'll need in boys' clothing: single and double-breasted blazers, fancy two-and three-button sports coats — all in rich-looking spring fabrics — with matching never-iron slacks (sizes 6 to 18); all-weather coats with zip-in linings (some trench coat style, others glen plaids in the balmaccan cut with wrist strap); and some very attractive windbreaker jackets (about $5).

In the men's department, the suit picutre for men this spring is considerably brighter. Robert Hall, stepping with the times, features pure virgin wool worsteds in dynamic patterns and colors (About $60). We noticed the new, livlier colors in the worsted and silk sharkskins, too. ($64.95)

Men's sportswear (for older boys' as well), includes the Julliard tailored slacks ($14.95 and up), many of which have a "ban roll" factor that eliminated the rolled-over waistline. We noticed sports coats in gest that the audience is to be "a part of the action." Actors talk to us. We then find, however, that Durrell was only kidding and really wants us to watch rather than "do."

IMPORTED KNITS from Italy and British Hong Kong, designed by Gina Teresa, are part of the spring scene at Robert Hall, U.S. 1. Beautifully full-fashioned, the jacket-and-skirt ensembles with shell tops are priced at $29.99.

There are scenes of cool comedy that seem like short travels up the wrong road. They do not lead to the same destination as those scenes which preceeded them.

The most entertaining moments of the play are those scenes which deal with Faustus and the devil, convincingly played by Larry Strichman. The actors, Mr. Strichman and Bill Hootkins as Faustus have an on stage rapport which makes every moment interesting.

Like Mr. Hootkins, earlier performance in O'Neill's "Long Day's Journey into Night," this current performance is a fine job.

In fact his work in "An Irish Faustus" surpasses his previous showing because he seems to have mastered all of his tools. That large and very rich voice is used with discretion and excellent taste. The play demands an actor of great variety in its lead role; fortunately, Intime has such a performer in William Hootkins.

Marie Miller, one of Princeton's busiest actresses, has the task of making a flesh and blood character out of the queen. This is no easy job. Aside from the steam-rolling of her initial entrance and the ranting of her ritualistic screamings a few scenes later, there isn't really too much to the role.

Marie Miller rants loudly and threatens with conviction, but there is little substance to her portrayal. What she does is theatrical, in the best sense of the word. The audience watches and listens. It is not, however, a character or characterization one can "take home." Part of the problem lies in the fact that there is so little to work with.

CHARLY: Cliff Robertson, as the mentally retarded adult who receives a brain transplant, and Claire Bloom as the teacher who falls in love with him, star in "Charly," this week at the Playhouse, Prince and RKO Trent.

The company spared no pains in mounting this show. Costumes, scenery, and lighting all have their moments of excellence; moments where the skill of the technicians and designers makes interesting bits out of the lukewarm material.

The set is simple and fluid-capable of meeting the demands of the script. Because of Daniel Berkowitz' designs, the relatively small stage of Murray Theatre grows and contracts to accord with the requirements for each scene. The costumes, a collage of greys, blacks, and whites, contribute to the slightly shifting moods of the various scenes.

"An Irish Faustus" is well done by Theatre Intime. It shows a "company concern." The script, however, is not up to the production. It is tentative; seemingly wearing several masks at the same time.

A company like Intime should be constantly on the look out for new scripts. It is to their credit that they went to such pains to obtain the rights to "Faustus." It is hoped, however, that their next venture in this area will be with a stronger script. The play continues next week.

For Pinter, Ionesco. Tryouts will be held Monday and Tuesday for roles in a pair of plays scheduled by Community Players for presentation on May 2-3 and 9-10.

The plays are Pinter's "The Lover" and Ionesco's "The Bald Soprano," both to be directed by Alan Pierce.

Auditions will be at 8:30 p.m. next Monday and Tuesday in the new Little Theatre of the Unitarian Church, Cherry Hill Road off Route 206, where the plays will be given in May.

The two plays include parts for four men and four women in a broad range of age.

News Of The Theatres

most factual in today's rapidly advancing world of science.

Cliff Robertson, who plays the hapless Charly Gordon, does the best acting job of his career in the difficult role of the retarded young man for whom a brain "transplant" provides scintillating brilliance briefly, only to find that brilliance fade and the bitter, biting return of his sub normal mental state.

Opposite him is Claire Bloom as the night school teacher, giving a matching performance of sensitivity and skill. Lilia Skala, whose splendid mother superior in "Lilies of the Field" is remembered, plays a scientist in chief support.

Imaginative photography and Ravi Shankar's score do much to sustain the picture's poignancy.

"ROMEO" STAYS ON

Joins Record-holders. The Zeffirelli version of "Romeo and Juliet" holds over at the Garden Theatre, marking its fifth consecutive week in Princeton.

Theatre manager Richard Knight checked his records back to 1937 and finds that only two other films have enjoyed five-week runs: "Tom Jones" and "The Graduate."

GARDEN

Romeo and Juliet (now playing). Italian director Franco Zeffirelli has given us an exciting interpretation of the old classic. The film swirls with color, movement and excitement with the animal spirits and brashness of youth. Here are no languishing, sighing lovers.

Olivia Hussey, said to have been only 15 when she played the role, is the youngest actress ever to have undertaken the part of Juliet professionally. Leonard Whiting is said to have been only 17 when the film was made. Zeffirelli has been able to draw from these youngsters performances with a touching childlike quality, yet with an intensity and sexuality that makes plausible the tragic train of events.

He has taken many liberties with Shakespeare in an effort to stress its relevance to contemporary problems. The scene is mid 15th century Italy, rather than Shakespeare's chain on the toe and a sling Elizabethan 16th century, enabling the film to capitalize on the richness of Italian Renaissance costumes, interiors and architecture.

"Noah's Flood" Coming

Tickets are now available for Benjamin Britten's opera pageant "Noye's Fludde" to be given April 25 and 26 in Trinity Church.

Actors, singers and musicians from McCarter Theatre, Westminster Choir College, the American Recorder Society, the Trenton Symphony and the general Princeton community will join to present the Britten work.

A chorus of more than 60 boys and girls, costumed with the heads of all the animals on the Ark, will be featured in the production.

Performances will be Friday and Saturday, April 25 and 26, at 8:30 p.m. and Saturday at 4. Ticket application forms may be obtained from Mrs. Richard Paynter, 49 Wilson Road.

It's New To Us

plaids and checks ($21.88) — and they are a little gayer this year. All alterations, of course, are included in the ticket price.

For golf and the outdoors in general, the Robert Hall men's wear department features color-coordinated "Glen Douglas" sportmates: poplin jackets (sizes 36-46, $6.95) and reversible belted casual slacks, pre-cuffed ($5.95) all permanently pressed for wrinkle free wear.

HEELS ARE HIGHER

And More Graceful. A flash on note from the Nassau Shoe Tree: "Spring shoes are more feminine this year. The heels are a little higher in dress shoes, while the sports shoe is still heavy. The new heel looks heavy from the side, but slender from the back—and the extended sole is new."

The Nassau Shoe Tree, on Palmer Square, is showing all the pretty yellows, pinks greens and blues of the fashion rainbow. But navy, black, bone and white will be the basic colors for your shoe wardrobe.

Patent leather is featured in a variety of sling and pump styles, but the shoe surprise of the season is the new shimmery lustre calf. For after 5, the Shoe Tree has a beautiful pearl white T-strap in lustre-calf made by Delisa Deb, accented by a matching daisy with a faille bow and the new slim heel.

Browsing around, the Nassau Shoe Tree has quite an assortment of heel heights this spring: mid high to low can be found on dressy shoes and on the sporty shoes.

A nicely marbled tortoise patent comes in the up-the-front style with a slacked heel, in the Gamin line by Andrew Geller. Also, in a higher heel, a marbelized tortoise by Mademoiselle with the new slim heel. Both have bags to match.

Dark brown is a spring color, and we noticed a Caressa brown patent pump with an intriguing scroll cut-out underfaced with white kid. Among the Jacques Levines are some absolutely enchanting pure silk prints-one with pinks dominating, another with blues and greens. Caressa has come out with a nice salmon pink kid shoe, trimmed with cafe-au-lait strap.

Another Levine we liked was of silk faille-paisley in a low vamp sling back. It is very dressy and comes with a matching bag.

You cannot leave the Nassau Shoe Tree without looking at this year's patriotic red-white-and-blue shoes. Mademoiselle has come out with a white grained calf with a patriotic trim of belting, held by a narrow white band and buckle.

Or, a white straw, accented by a red, white and blue striped heel, with the theme repeated around the wedge sole. You'll find white spectators, stunningly accented with blue or with white in a new spectator design.

And also be sure to see the new frogskin in patent. There's a very beautiful design in turquoise with the new extended sole. A simple and lovely shoe, with a matching bag.

NEW SOUTH VACATED

Students End Protest. Some 40 Princeton University students voluntarily ended their takeover of the University's New South building early Tuesday evening, slightly less than 12 hours after they had barricaded themselves inside.

The students, mostly members of the Association for Black Collegians, filed quickly out of the building at 6:30 p.m., after vowing earlier in the day to remain inside until the University met their demands to sell all stocks in companies doing business in South Africa.

Punishment of those involved will probably be handled by the Discipline Committee, whose membership includes five students. At a press conference held earlier Tuesday afternoon, President Robert F. Goheen indicated that the students face charges which could mean dismissal. In response to a question, he said he did not believe in offering amnesty as a relief to this kind of disorder.

Jerome Davis, vice-president of ABC, said the move had been a symbolic protest against the University's investment policies in South Africa. He asserted that the 12-hour takeover had achieved the group's goals of dramatizing its disgust with President Goheen's speech last Tuesday (Dr. Goheen rejected the United Front's demands at that time), and demonstrating its continued commitment to the goal of disinvestment by the University.

Goheen Issues Warning. Dr. Goheen warned the students earlier that the University would not tolerate excessive delay, and would consider taking legal action against them if the protest continued. "We do not wish to use external forces, until we are absolutely compelled to do it," he added.

The takeover of the building, which houses many of the University's administrative services, came as the culmination of several weeks of agitation by student groups.

Students from the ABC accompanied by small delegations from the SDS and the Third World Liberation Front, walked into the seven-story structure, located near the Penn-Central railroad station, around 7 a.m., soon after it had been unlocked for the day by a University janitor.

All doors and entrances were blocked to prevent anyone else from entering. University employees showed up for work at 8, and left without incident. A rumor widely circulated around campus during the morning indicated that the students would walk out of the building at 12:30 p.m. but a spokesman for ABC, talking through a bullhorn from inside the building, scoffed at the idea, saying the group had no intention of leaving until its demands were met.

Later in the afternoon at a rally attended by about 500 sympathizers, counter-demonstrators, but mostly spectators, several spokesmen for the protestors called on the University to end its "racist ties."

PROTEST DULY NOTED: When black students at Princeton University took over the New South administration building Tuesday to express disapproval of the University's ownership of South African securities, newspaper, radio and TV coverage was prompt. Among those on hand above were a woman reporter from a New York radio station with microphone in hand, another reporter with pad in hand, a television cameraman and a newspaper photographer. Story, this page.

Student supoort appeared to be solidly behind the administration. Dr. Goheen was given a standing ovation at the end of his speech Tuesday by the majority of those present.

This past Tuesday the Daily Princetonian published the results of an independent campus survey, showing that undergraduates backed President Goheen's stand on South Africa investments by a 2-1 margin. An even greater number, 76%, felt that occupation of a university building by those opposed to the investment policy would not be a legitimate means of protest. The poll was answered by approximately 50% of the undergraduate body.

ROAD PLAN PASSED

Amended. The section of the Township's Loop Road that lies along the Stony Brook flood plain between Rosedale and Mercer Roads (It's "K" on the map) was erased from the map by the Township Planning Board Monday night before the Board unanimously adopted the road plan.

Also erased was a short link shooting off westward from "K" to "C" and itself labelled "C".

William Sutphin, the board's road sub-committee chairman, voted "no" on the modification. He agrees that "K," in the flood plain, should go, but would like to hang on to the "C" link, just in case.

This year, origin destination studies will be made to see whether Route 206 might be the major Princeton-Trenton carrier, Mr. Sutphin announced. The board also said it plans to review the Loop: Should it be continuous? Should its southwestern bend be extended farther west, along lines suggested at the public hearing last week?

Residents of the Shady Brook area, around Bertrand and Caldwell Drives, protested joining the Terhune segments to line up the eastern part of the Loop. They are worried about increased traffic. The board assured them that the Township could ban trucks, if necessary, and that traffic-control signals would be installed.

LECTURES INCLUDED In Antiques Show. Two lectures on the theme "Eighteenth Century Design for Living" will be included in the 10th annual Princeton Antiques Show on Friday, March 21, at the Princeton Day School.

Hedy Backlin-Landman, executive assistant at the Art Museum of Princeton University, will speak about "Elias Boudinot — A Patriot and his Home" at 11:30 a.m. Her illustrated talk will concentrate on the Boudinot exhibit at the University Art Museum.

A student of art and art history, Mrs. Backlin-Landman received her master's at Oberlin College where she was also assistant curator of the Allen Art Museum. She has written articles for several encyclopedias and has contributed to many art magazines, including "Art News," "Art in America" and "Antiques."

The second antique show lecture will be presented at 8:15 p.m. by Kenneth Chorley, former president of Colonial Williamsburg. In his talk "From Behind the Scenes in the Restoration of Colonial Williamsburg," Mr. Chorley will offer first hand observations on the work of restoring the eighteenth century landmark.

He has been associated with Williamsburg since the beginning of the restoration project in 1926, and served as president of the landmark from 1935 to 1958.

The Antique Show will be open for three days, beginning March 20. All proceeds from the show, which will include items from 30 different antique dealers, will benefit the development and scholarship fund of Wellesley College.

CLUSTER PLAN?

"Not Quite," Says Board. It may turn out to be the Township's first development planned along cluster lines, but "it certainly doesn't look like cluster zoning the way it is now," in the view of Hans K. Sander, chairman of the Township Planning Board.

The owner-developer, Timothy Sheehan, spread out before the Planning Board Monday night an informal suggestion for the 80 acres Mr. Sheehan owns north of Stuart Road and west of Cherry Hill.

He proposes 38 lots, one and one-half to two and one-half acres, with five or six acres in each of two corners, set aside as "open space."

Township Committee plans to introduce a cluster-zoning amendment sometime this spring, allowing developers to group houses on a tract, there by leaving large areas for open space.

Mr. Sander revealed that the minimum size allowed for a single house under the new amendment will be a quarter acre. He said that, in his opinion, Mr. Sheehan's plan looked like a standard kind of development and wasn't really clustered at all.

The tract is on the Township's Open Space map. Mr. Sheehan told the board that Thomas Cook, Open Space's attorney, hadn't discussed actual purchase with him for over a year, and he added that the suggested price — $2,3.000 per acre — was "ridiculous."

In the continuing story of the Princeton Shopping Center, the Planning Board passed a resolution wiping the slate clean. The Center's owner, George Warnecke, must now start all over again with his plans to build a new A & P and a Bamberger's addition.

Lawyers for Mr. Warnecke told the Township last week that site plan review didn't apply to the Center because the site plan ordinance didn't exist when the Center obtained its first building permit.

However, that first permit expired. By the time the Center applied for its second permit, the site plan review ordinance was indeed in existence, and Township attorney Gordon Griffin has notified the Center's lawyers that review will be made, under the ordinance, of whatever new plans the Center comes up with.

ELIAS BOUDINOT AND FRIENDS: The doughty 18th-century Princetonian will be the subject of a lecture by Mrs. Hedy Backlin-Landman at the Wellesley Club Antiques Show. Mrs. Backlin-Landman is holding one of the Boudinot silver pieces from the Princeton University Art Museum's collection.

The Township also says the Center didn't file enough required information when it applied for the second permit. And there is the continuing question of that northern strip of land along Terhune. The Township thinks irregularities in conveying that strip of land to the Center may constitute a violation of zoning variances Mr. Warnecke obtained for new construction at the Center.

Ask Smaller Bond. The board voted to recommend to Township Committee a reduction in Stuart Country Day School's bond for construction of Stuart Road. The school attorney asked for reduction from $248,000 to $55,000; however the board's recommendation left the amount up to Committee.

For the third time, the Planning Board refused to approve building permits so that Stuart Country Day can build houses on property it is developing near the school. The board says no building permits until Stuart Road is finished. The school's attorney told the board the road would be completed by late spring.

The board questioned whether a transfer of Herrontown Road property from Jac and Cornelia Weller to G. R. Murray, Inc., real estate firm, did indeed leave two parcels that will be devoted to "agricultural purposes."

If property is "agricultural," and is ever three acres, it don't have to go before the board for subdivision. Size is not in question here, but eventual use is. Kester Pierson, attorney for the board, suggested the board wait until fall to see whether the land was used agriculturally.

Mrs. Weller is president and Mr. Weller treasurer of the G. R. Murray, Inc.

WOMAN HOSPITALIZED

After Intersection Crash. A 58-year-old Lawrenceville woman was admitted to Princeton Hospital Tuesday morning for treatment of injuries she received in a two-car collision at the intersection of Terhune and Jefferson Road.

Mrs. Elizabeth L. Stupplebeen, 66 Titus Avenue, was admitted in satisfactory condition with a fractured shoulder and multiple bruises and abrasions. The second driver, Kenneth V. Conover Jr., 17, of Belle Mead sustained abrasions of his knee and legs.

A passenger in the Conover car, John Hango, 17, of Belle Mead, received a bump on his forehead. Both youths were treated and released.

Conover told police that he was driving south on Jefferson when he saw the Stupplebeen car approach the stop sign at the foot of Terhune, hesitate and then enter the intersection. The impact of the collision spun his car around and it traveled 50 feet in the opposite direction.

Mrs. Stupplebeen, even though she had her seat belt on, was thrown from her car. She said she first saw nothing coming. She then noticed the Conover car approaching at what she described as a "very high rate of speed" but by then, she added, she could do nothing to prevent the accident, which occurred at 8 06 p.m.

Both cars had to be towed away. Ptl. Robert Heacock made no charges.

Car Skids Into Pole. At 1:42 Friday morning, a car operated by Barbara A. Brokaw, 21, Wertsville Road, Hopewell, skidded out of control on a curve on Rosedale Road and struck a pole.

Treated later at Princeton Hospital for a contusion of the nose, she told police her car started to slide because of the snowy condition of the road. The entire front end and right side of her car were damaged. Ptl. David Potts investigated the mishap which took place 300 feet east of the Johnson Park School drive.

The combination of the Kingston Bridge and a driver from outside the Princeton area claimed another victim at 5:38 Friday night.

Samuel T. Jones, 58, of Pis cataway, received lacerations over both eyes and chest contusions when his car skidded into the bridge. He was taken to the hospital by Princeton police, treated and released.

Mr. Jones told police his car skidded when it hit a patch of ice. However, Ptl. Anthony Gaylord ticketed him for failure to keep right when he noted in his report that he had checked the road for ice and found none.

The front end and entire left side of the Jones car were damaged.

Car Strikes Student. A 19 year old Princeton University student, David Shore, 1937 Hall, was struck by a car Thursday afternoon as he attempted to cross Nassau Street, some 75 feet west of Witherspoon. He was issued a summons by Sgt. John J. Bellow for failing to cross at a crosswalk.

Shore was tossed up on the hood of a car driven by Leroy C. Bolden, 1-B, 94 Birch Avenue, Bolden, 18, 94 Birch Avenue, was removed by members of the Princeton First Aid and Rescue Squad and taken to Princeton Hospital where he was treated for contusions of the left hip and right leg. X-rays revealed no fractures.

After impact, the car continued on for 273 feet before stopping. According to Sgt. Bellow, this was not due to excessive speed on the driver's part but to his belief that if he had stopped quickly, the pedestrian might have fallen to the roadway where he could have been struck by other cars.

Witnesses said that the victim had started to cross against a yellow light which turned red just prior to his being hit. Police added that Mr. Bolden, second in a line of traffic waiting to turn left at Witherspoon, had had his view blocked by another car traveling in the curb lane which had stopped to allow the pedestrian to cross.

THREE ARE FINED

Under Dog Ordinance. Three Township residents were fined $10 each last week by Judge Burton Peskin for allowing their dogs to run loose on school property in violation of a Township ordinance.

They are Mary A. Hunt, 70 Alexander Street; Robert Brownstein, 407 Prospect Avenue; and Andrew Cahill, 27 Philip Drive.

In Borough court Monday, Byron H. Jones, 44, 173 Carter Road, was fined $55 for leaving the scene of an accident. In addition, Judge Theodore T. Tams Jr. revoked his license for 15 days.

CAR WINDOWS SMASHED

By Vandals. The windows of six parked cars were smashed last week by vandals, who Police Chief Peter J. McCrohan said were apparently just riding around picking cars at random for their targets.

In each case, he said, a front window or one on the driver's side had been punched out with a sharp instrument.

The first report came from Dr. Henry Van Dusen of 27 Armour Road, who told police that the front window of a car parked in front of his house belongnig to one of his guests had been broken. Police identified the owner as Paul Paddock of 9 Ober Road.

Police later discovered two more cars parked on Spruce Street had been similarly damaged. They were owned by Doreen Sherman of Belle Mead and Mrs. Alice R. Severn of Princeton Arms, Cranbury. A third car, owned by John D. Brooks, 31 Prospect Avenue, was found damaged on Moore Street.

Two more victims were Elaine Wert of Kendall Park, whose car had been parked on Mercer Street near the Trinity Church lot, and Arnold Zuboss of the Graduate College. His car was parked on Battle Road, near Springdale.

Store Window Broken. A Witherspoon Street resident called police at 8:20 Sunday night to report that someone had just broken a large front window of a building at 166 Witherspoon St.

According to police, a witness said that she saw five youths throw a garbage can through the window and then run down Lytle Street. Police added she could not describe them other than that they were all Negroes. The building, near Forer's Drug Store, is vacant.

DRUG SYMPOSIUM SET

By Hopewell Valley Board. The Hopewell Valley Board of Education will sponsor a public symposium on "Drugs, Addiction and Their Affect on Youth Today," at 8 p.m., Tuesday, in the Central High School auditorium.

Harold Rogue, associated with the Drug Addiction Treatment Service of the Neuro-Psychiatric Institute in Skillman and several of his colleagues will present a program based on their experience in working with drug addicts. Various types of drugs and how they can be identified will be featured.

"Wednesdays" Serve Teachers and Students

● What is a "disadvantaged child?" How does a teacher communicate with a "disadvantaged child?"

On a recent Wednesday afternoon, the In Service teachers' course in "The Disadvantaged Student" was about mid-way in its semester long discussions.

● Meanwhile, 14 high school students who have never acted before, were exploring the idea of making a character come to life, working with a member of the English department and a high school junior as mentor and peer.

● On Wednesday, March 5, freshman biology students heard and responded to remarks by Joseph Schmeltz, naturalist with the Mercer County Parks Commission, who talked on ichthyology and oceanography.

● This Wednesday, every student in Princeton High School will be involved in Student Administration Day Assemblies. Two rival students' "parties," one headed by Peter McCrohan and the other by Simeon Moss, will present candidates and compete for student votes. Winners will be teachers and administrators on a day later this month

Teachers Learn. That's only a Wednesday Program sample, of course. The teachers' course in The Disadvantaged Student and the students' adventures into the world of the theatre, are examples of what Wednesdays are all about in the Princeton school system

Earl Thomas, Princeton University's director of "Upward Bound" — the Princeton Cooperative School Program, usually gives the Disadvantaged class. But this particular Wednesday, he sat quietly smiling in the back of the room while David Crabbe, chairman of the University's Program in Anthropology, took command.

Teachers enrolled in the course teach high school English, biology, kindergarten, first grade, pre kindergarten. There is a nurse, a guidance specialist, a learning disability specialist. A side from Dr. Thomas, the only black member of the group was a teachers' aide.

Help! "We came here," one teacher states, "to get enough group courage to break routine and find something new."

A "disadvantaged child" was defined variously as one with "too much or too little"; one with parents who weren't interested in what he learned at school; one who was "culturally deprived."

It was the Negro teachers' aide who asked "How does a teacher communicate with a disadvantaged child?"

Mr. Crabbe, wearing a smile which said "Maybe I'm putting you on?" described in coolest anthropological detail what each member of the group had done as she — there was only one man — entered the classroom that afternoon.

Two women chatted like intimate friends . . . one woman removed her handbag from a chair, obviously making room for an entering friend . . . one woman — ostentatiously? — handed a paper to Dr. Thomas as though saying, "See? I know the teacher!"

Using class members as laboratory specimens, Mr. Crabbe probed the complex relationships in which each human is involved. He made a sharp point of the fact that he had made value judgments about some of the teachers from superficial observation.

For example, why did one teacher sit by the door each week? Why did she regard herself as "keeper of the portal?" "Because I always have to leave early," she explained.

By dissecting the way two teachers exchanged a memo in the presence of a third, he described mutually exclusive groups whose members recognize that exclusivity.

He discussed the "turf" idea — why teachers sat in the same seats each week, just as students in their classes probably did.

By the end of a two hour session, teachers were saying "I'm a PERSON! Don't make me just part of some later action!" or "Is it the culture that makes us act as we do? Where is the real person!

Previous sessions, under Dr. Thomas, inquired into the kinds of students teachers give priority to, and whether that priority is voluntary or not.

"The essential thing we often overlook," observed Dr. Thomas, "is the teacher as PERSON, in the teacher-student relationship."

Acting, For Me. Up the hallway in the high school auditorium, Don Evans of the English faculty, and Don Schay, junior at PHS, held their Dramatic Workshop.

"I'm concentrating on two basics," Mr. Evans explains, "making the character in the play real for the actor, and portraying that character to the audience."

These youngsters have never acted before. Mr. Evans says he began with skits and monologues but found the kids were too interested in dialogue and action. Now he's moved on to discussions, or exercises.

"Take an incident in your life which has produced an emotion and reproduce it on stage. And another: can you actually taste tea, while you're on stage drinking water?"

During the workshop work in the auditorium, a young woman sat and watched. Asked if she had a part in the proceedings, she said no, she was only a visitor. "I've just moved to Princeton," she said, and I like this kind of high school and what it's doing."

IT'S WEDNESDAY AFTRENOON: Littlebrook School boys, indignant because only girls had been invited by cafeteria employees to learn about making cookies, brought such pressure against the Establishment that boys' Wednesday afternoon cooking classes were started. Sam Kaplan, Paul Kuhn and Kenneth Reid explore the consistency of unbaked Toll House dough, guided by Mrs. Jeanne-Harvey. Meanwhile, across town, the John Witherspoon gym echoes to the pleasure of youngsters in Mrs. John Cleaver's community program for the children of working mothers. (Staff Photos)

KROCK PAPERS DONATED

To University Library. Newspaperman Arthur Krock, twice a winner of the Pulitzer Prize and Washington Bureau Chief of "The New York Times" for 21 years, has donated his correspondence to the Princeton University Library, including some 6,000 letters to and from public figures ranging back to Theodore Roosevelt.

The gift completes the Krock Papers, which will be partly restricted for a period of years. Other sections of the Papers include newspaper clippings, speech texts, financial records and notes used for Krock's autobiography, "Memoirs: Sixty Years on the Firing Line," a best-seller since it was published last October.

A native of Glasgow, Ky., Krock was a member of Princeton's Class of 1908 and received an honorary degree from Princeton in 1937. He began his newspaper career in 1907 as a reporter for the Louisville "Times" and became Washington correspondent for the paper in 1910. He became editorial manager for both the "Times" and the Louisville "Courier-Journal" in 1915, before becoming editor-in-chief of the "Times" in 1919.

In 1927, Krock became a member of "The New York Times" Board of Editors, after four years as assistant to president Ralph Pulitzer of the "New York World." He headed the Washington Bureau for "The New York Times" from 1932 through 1953 and for 13 more years served as a political analyst in Washington. He received Pulitzer Prizes for his work in both 1935 and 1938 and from 1940 to 1953 was a member of Columbia University's Pulitzer Prize Board.

LEGION SALUTE: A 6-cent stamp honoring the 50th anniversary of the American Legion goes on sale this Saturday. Above are Morton Charydzak, (left) finance officer of Post 76, with Postmaster John L. Dilworth, holding a bulletin board notice about the new stamp, 120 million of which will be printed. First day covers may be obtained from Washington, D.C.

Topics Of The Town

LEGION TO MARK 50TH

On Saturday, Posts 76 and 218 will be observing on Saturday the 50th anniversary of the founding of the American Legion in Paris in 1919.

Post 76, the older of the two Princeton units, received its charter on August 18, 1919. Of the 15 veterans who applied for the charter, three are still part of the post. Robert Benham, Edward A. MacMillan and Robert Scoon. The post was originally to be called the "Robert A. H. Baker Post," honoring Princeton University's great athlete who was killed in the war.

Leafing through the old minutes book, members were reminded that the post first met on September 4 in the old Mercer Hall on Nassau Street where the Annex Grill now stands. The 98 year old building was destroyed by fire in 1943.

Richard Stockton III was made temporary chairman at the first session, and Mr. Benham was appointed secretary. The Post's first speaker was Admiral Caspar F. Goodrich, whose widow lives at 165 Library Place. Members organized a membership drive throughout the town.

A few weeks after the first meeting, the post met again with 150 members in attendance. Major General Hugh Scott was elected first commander, Mr. Stockton vice-commander, and Mr. Burnham post adjutant.

A committee charged with finding a name for the post recommended "Princeton No. 76" at the next meeting and this has remained so down through the years.

Other Officers Recalled. The original officers of the post also included Joseph Dennen, finance officer; Dr. Charles Brown, William Libby, Admiral Goodrich, — all named to the executive committee; Edward Stevens, post historian, and S. M. Cleveland, post chaplain.

And elected as delegates to the first state convention, October 11, 1919, were William C. Vandewater, David M. Flynn, president of the First National Bank; Colonel George Trowbridge, Donald G. Herring and Gustave Konietzko.

The Post struggled with finances and meeting places during its early years, raising money at one time with a swimming party at the "sheep wash," the area on the Mill stone directly to the east of the present post home on Washington Road.

Meetings continued in Mercer Hall until October 15, 1920, when the post moved to the Branch Building at the corner of Witherspoon and Spring Streets. From there, it moved to the YMCA room over Marsh's Drug Store at 30 Nassau, and then on to quarters over Leigh's Clothing Store at 58 Nassau. Finally, in 1933, the move was made to Mercer Street, adjacent to Trinity Church. In 1967, the Post packed up again, buying the present home on Washington Road.

The organization of Post 76 was followed in less than two years by the formation of the Ladies Auxiliary, with Mrs. Hugh Scott serving as the first president.

Minutes Reflect Activities. The minutes range the veterans' concerns: the bonus issue, Memorial Day parades, fund raising, establishment of a drum and bugle corps; July Fourth fireworks, youth baseball and rifle activities. Funds were raised through the years at carnivals, dances, shows.

In recent years, Post 76 has sponsored delegates to Boys' State, contributed flags to community organizations, guided veterans through the maze of paperwork at the Veterans' Administration, and has considered itself a service organization for all veterans, men and women.

This Saturday, Post 76 will hold an anniversary dinner dance at the post home, with a minimum of speech making," according to Post Commander William Haupt.

WASHINGTON TRIP SET

By Girl Scouts. A three day bus tour of Washington, D. C. has been arranged for Cadette Girl Scout Troop 76, sponsored by the Calvary Baptist Church.

The troop will stay at the Manor House of the Rockwood National Girl Scout Program Center, Potomac, Md. Visits have also been planned to Mt. Vernon, Arlington Cemetery, the White House, Congress, the Supreme Court and the Smithsonian Institute.

The trip has been partially financed by the sale of Girl Scout cookies. Additional funds will be contributed by a committee of mothers who will present a fashion show and luncheon at Deanthwacket on March 22. Tickets may be obtained from Mrs. Daniel Magee, 924 2788.

THE CASE AGAINST . . .

#2 in a series of messages to Princeton area consumers from Paul J. Krebs, Executive Director, N. J. Office of Consumer Protection, Newark. (Presented here as a public service by the Consumer Education Committee of Consumer Bureau, Inc. The opinions expressed by Mr. Krebs are not necessarily the opinions of Consumer Bureau, Inc.)

PAUL KREBS

Mr. Johnson was driving his 3-month old new car home from work when he heard a terrible grinding noise. He pulled in immediately and called his dealer. They came with a tow truck and brought the car back to the dealer's garage. There later Mr. Johnson was informed that the transmission would have to be replaced. It would cost him $345. Mr. Johnson was stunned. The car was 3 months old and had only 2,500 miles on the speedometer. Why didn't the warranty cover the repairs? The dealer was apologetic but said his hands were tied. The factory representative had invoked the clause in the warranty that released the manufacturer from responsibility if the car is abused. No proof that the car had been abused was offered but, under present State and Federal law, none had to be offered.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuels purchased a combination refrigerator-freezer from a local reputable dealer for $480. Within 6 months the refrigerator needed repair no fewer than eight times. Finally the dealer, who had been franchised by the manufacturer for 22 years, asked the manufacturer to replace the unit. The manufacturer refused, and the dealer was obviously incompetent if he could not properly repair the unit. The dealer himself asked the New Jersey Office of Consumer Protection to intervede. The manufacturer, located out-of-state, ignored our correspondence. The out-of-state Attorney General had no authority to intervene. The dealer renounced his franchise but the Samuels were still out $480.

Our most recent recommendations in the area of new car warranties is for Federal establishment of a warranty concept which would hold the manufacturer completely responsible for the safety and fitness for use of his product. Administration of the law would be placed in the hands of the Federal Trade Commission. This suggestion would allow manufacturers to continue to write their own warranties but would prevent them from being able to deny basic responsibility for the quality of their goods.

The suggested legislation would also allow the Federal Trade Commission to impose penalties up to $5,000 on any manufacturer who did not live up to the terms of his warranty and would set up regional bodies to arbitrate consumer complaints of non-performance under the warranty. This would enable you to settle your warranty problems without having to sue in state or Federal court. The proposed law would allow the regional arbitration bodies to order replacement of the car when, in their judgment, it could not be placed in proper working condition.

Once this concept was adopted for the automobile industry, it could easily be broadened to include other products such as television sets and household appliances.

NEW PRESIDENT CHOSEN

By Westminster Trustees.

Ray E. Robinson, associate director of the Peabody Conservatory of Music in Baltimore, has been chosen to succeed Dr. Lee H. Bristol Jr. as president of Westminster Choir College.

As Dean of Peabody for three years, the 36-year-old educator organized the graduate committee and helped establish the present doctoral program. Under his leadership, the master's program was expanded and the curriculum reorganized with a strengthened faculty.

Ray E. Robinson

He served as director of the Peabody summer sessions for six years, during which time the enrollment more than quadrupled from 187 to 800 students, including many professional musicians and music educators. A program of famous artists in residence, initiated by Mr. Robinson, brought several well-known groups and individuals to the summer sessions.

Two years ago, Mr. Robinson conceived a special music program through which 50 students in the Baltimore School system received intensive training in private lessons, theory, music history and ensemble performance. The public schools' music department hailed his efforts as producing the most markedly measurable change in attitude among the children.

A graduate of San Jose State College, Mr. Robinson received advanced degrees in music from Indiana University. He taught there and at Cascade College, Portland, Oregon, before joining the staff of Peabody.

Mr. Robinson has also composed and conducted musical backgrounds for religious films and records. A writer as well as a choral director and violist, he has served for two years as music critic for the Baltimore Evening Sun.

"We have been looking for a vigorous, talented, young musician and educator to succeed to the leadership of the college," The Rev. Arthur M. Byers Jr., chairman of the board of trustees, commented. "In Mr. Robinson we think we have found a fortuitous combination.

"As acting director for more than a year at Peabody Conservatory, his administrative ability was proven as he directed an outstanding music school with more than 500 students. We knew we would have difficulty filling the post occupied by such an outstanding man as Dr. Bristol. We are fortunate in being able to do so with Mr. Robinson."

Mr. Robinson will assume the Westminster post this summer and live in Hamilton House, the president's residence on the 26-acre campus. Dr. Bristol, who spent eight years at Westminster, directing its growth to its present status as an accredited institution with modern facilities and a stronger financial base, has not announced his future plans.

Film Evaluation Debated.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I really must protest your running under the title of Film Ratings," The Family Movie Committee, which said of Romeo and Juliet "Includes unnecessary nude scene, adults entertaining, young people and mature children no."

I realize that an heretofore revered extremity in Technicolor on a large looming screen is disquieting to a certain faction of individuals. However, it must be pointed out that there was no activity or movement involved, the scene was short in space of time, there was no glaring close up, and the camera didn't make a point to dwell on it.

In short, it was a tastefully done scene which furthered the portrayal of passionate young lovers doomed by the conventions and Victorianistic attitudes of their parents.

In its review, this committee neglected the attributes of this film which garnered it 4 Academy Award nominations and which prompted you, Town Topics, to say that it was a film which young people could identify with.

It seems to me this committee overlooked the new approach to the play, the excellent characterization, the wonderful photography and color, the superb direction; and judged the film on the basis of its compliancy with their cinematic standards of good taste.

So if, for financial reasons or others, you have to run this committee's "Film Ratings," please refrain from using this title which suffers greatly at their hands and run "Self-Appointed Guardians of Cinematic Suitability" instead.

One Dog Bite is One Too Many.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

The following is the text of a letter addressed to the Township Committee:

"In reference to Mayor John D. Wallace's observation (Town Topics, March 6) 'We're going to be damned if we do and damned if we don't' on the dog ordinance, I'd like to remind the Mayor and the Township Councilmen that the price one pays for public service is just that. Therefore, gentlemen, be stout hearted and of firm conviction!

You were elected to public office to work for the good of the people of this community. That includes the responsibility for the safety of its citizens, and should be your primary consideration. A person bitten by a dog just once, is once too much!"

People Have Rights, Too.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

At the March 3rd meeting, Mrs. Mathey implied that signers of the P.T.O. Dog-Leash Petition were somehow disqualified if they lived in University housing.

It must be said most emphatically that people living in University housing are as entitled to the complete and free use of Princeton's streets, sidewalks and public facilities as those with "acreage" on Brookstone Drive and Van Dyke Road. In particular, the Harrison Street residents have been especially troubled by dogs and 90% of them (240 families) want a full leash law.

We will not adjust our use of those facilities our tax dollars pay for to the convenience of dogs. Four or five hours a day will simply not do. We want to bicycle, jog and walk when and where we please and not at the descretion of dogs and their owners.

People have rights. Dogs do not have rights and their owners must not expect special privileges. Dogs are jeopardizing the rights of people in Princeton so the dogs must be confined because one person is of infinitely more value than all dogs.

Mr. Dexter-Miller and Mr. Hutter, please comment in these columns.

Dog Law Contradictory.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

People ask why Princetonians become so aroused by dogs when there are more important problems before us all. Periodically, we seem to have to submit to these traumatic experiences as a sort of a purgative. And yet Princeton, in its own fashion, has consistently determined that its books shall carry reasonable laws.

Indeed there are more burning issues before us. One of them is respect for law. Another is our children's growth into responsible citizens. We cannot hope to engender respect by enacting laws that cannot be respected even before their adoption, much less afterward.

Lower Merion Township, outside of Philadelphia, has a leash law. One resident of eight years there, whose dog has wandered freely along with almost everybody else's, was asked whether they had a law. She hadn't heard of it but would find out. The police officer's reply was yes, and if she had a dog she'd better keep him confined or the dog-catcher would come pick him up.

A law that is ignored and flouted, that is unjust, and that cannot be enforced breeds contempt. As with money, the bad laws drive out the good.

The ordinance tabled March 3 blatantly contradicts itself by inviting at nighttime the very violations it prescribes for day. How many conscientious dog owners — or even police — would be able to gain control of their dogs in the dark before bedtime in order to confine them before the 7 a.m. curfew? For those owners this ordinance is in effect a total leash law. For the irresponsible owners the practical problems of police enforcement at night make it a virtual guarantee of immunity.

There is another way. And any combination of measures that are reasonable, realistic, and just and that can accomplish the objectives of dog control (i.e., protection of children, walkers and cyclists, property, and the peace, and still permit responsible residents to keep good dogs) should not be dismissed if they will help to keep bad laws off our books.

To bring the apparently very real problem of dogs at schools and nuisance, biting, and destructive dogs under control, we had proposed confining, until schools close in June, all dogs by leash or fence between 7 a.m. and 1 p.m. the critical school hours and hours of major delivery activity to homes.

The fulltime dog control officers thus freed from constant surveillance of the critical school areas could then undertake a full investigation of the many known dog problem areas and clean out the offending dogs, by imposing severe fines and orders of confinement or banishment from the Township on their owners.

We had suggested enlisting the aid of the Small Animal Rescue League, a responsible agency, to serve as a collection and notification center for complaints against a neighbor's dog.

We also endorse immediate construction of fences around the schoolyards, three of which already have substantial portions of their perimeters fenced (this suggestion was roundly hooted down at earlier hearings, yet it would be far less expensive in the long run and less offensive than fences around half the yards in the Township — or merely less fenceive.)

With the immediate problem of offending dogs relieved by such a joint effort and reduced to manageable proportions, it should be fairly easy to control the backsliders and the new arrivals in town. Then we could look forward to much-abbreviated confinement hours in the ensuing school years, if indeed any are needed.

We need in this charged atmosphere a spirit of accommodation, flexibility, and imagination. And we need the good will, not just of the dog lovers, but of all reasonable, sensible citizens.

The Human Body . . .

A Powered Machine, Its Function & Care

The framework of the human being is the skeleton, with the spine aiding in the support of the entire body. The delicate internal organs are protected mainly by the framework of the ribs; the bones of the shoulders, arms, and legs are efficiently placed to function with ease. The principal working parts are organs: the heart, lungs, kidneys, liver, spleen and others. Since depleted cells of the body are naturally replaced, the body can outwork and outwear man-made machines.

The motive power of the body is the nerve force. This comes from the "dynamo" in the skull. This nerve force is carried to every part of the body through the uncountable millions of tiny "nerve lines," and the main trunk which carries all these "wires" is the spinal cord. If the progress of this force is blocked by irritation of only a few of the nerves, the portion of the body deprived works imperfectly — or not at all. These parts or organs then cease to function properly and become debilitated.

When the nerve system is working smoothly, the answer is normal health. The doctor of chiropractic, through manipulation and other therapies, treats human ills by restoring this nerve force to the affected part. If the body is to remain healthy, the "main trunk line" — the spinal cord — must allow the nerve force full passage. Care of the body, physical health, must include treatment to allow this smooth flow of nerve energy. As the nerves emerge between the spinal vertebrae, pinching and irritation through pressure is frequent. Chiropractic care can prevent this, or effect recovery when it happens.

ERRORS TRIP TIGERS

In Loss to St. John's. In virtually every one of the 14 straight Ivy games Princeton won this winter to set a league record, the Tigers were guilty of (1) a slow start and (2) more turnovers than the opposition committed.

Against every Ivy opponent, they were good enough to overcome the problems they made for themselves, but when they brought these bad habits to Raleigh, N. C., and displayed them in the NCAA game with St. John's, the hole they dug proved too deep. The Orange and Black trailed, 11-2, after five minutes, was debited with 15 turnovers during the game to a mere six for the Redmen, and lost (72-63) by the same nine-point margin with which it was confronted shortly after the contest had started.

In the last analysis, of course, St. John's won because it had the better personnel; interestingly, four of its five starters were black, and the combination of speed, agility and experience that they displayed was more than Princeton could match. Known as a team which invariably plays its best when the stakes are high the Redmen combined their small number of turnovers with a fine 50% shooting average, and that's good enough to win nine out of ten basketball games.

The victors had the defensive ability, too. A tight man to man defense that frequently began with an all-court press forced the Tigers into a number of their turnovers. When Princeton began to hit from close range in the early minutes of the second half, a 1-3-1 zone blocked it out and the cold spell which followed for two minutes enabled St. John's to build its lead to an insurmountable 10 points.

Gamble Pays Off. An unusual move by St. John's coach Lou Carnesecca had a major bearing on the outcome. In the early going, Geoff Petrie hit for 13 points, including a four-for-seven performance from the floor while Joe De Pre was guarding him.

Carnesecca then put his top scorer, John Warren, on Petrie, despite the fact that Warren had three personals. In the decisive second half, Petrie was 1 for 12 and his overall 5 for 19 performance was far below his season's average.

Chris Thomforde, too, was sub par with a 5 for 16 performance but did much to keep the game close by grabbing 14 rebounds. The Tigers led this department, 41 to 26.

Hummer played the best game of his career, heating his man time and again under the basket and hitting 13 times on 16 shots for a fantastic 81%. He connected on only two of five free throws but his 28 points were more than he had made at any time in the past two seasons.

Despite the problems Petrie and Thomforde had, the two of them and Hummer combined to give Princeton all but eight of its points. Ed Stanczak had six (four of them free throws) and Bill Sickler two.

The Tigers kept chipping away at the original nine-point deficit, trailed by 35-30 at the half and eight minutes into the final period, took a short-lived 49-48 lead. St. John's retaliated with a three-point play, promptly threw up its 1-3-1 zone and that hobbled the Princetonians so quickly that two minutes later, it was 59-49. St. John's, and school was out.

Quick Look at 1970. Taking a 14 game winning streak against Ivy opposition into the 1969-70 season with it, and able to start four of the five players who were regulars this winter, Princeton will be the team to beat a year from now. Coach Pete Carril must pick a starter to replace 6-9 Chris Thomforde, so the Tigers will lose both height and experience but a team that can begin with Hummer and Petrie will have much going for it.

The question of whether the Orange and Black can repeat will hinge largely around the extent to which Coach Dick Harter of Penn can blend strong holdover material with the first unbeaten freshman team in the Quakers' history. The Red and Blue had several top sophomores this season and, with its Class of 1972 winning all 21 of its games, appears certain to be a prime factor in Ivy action for the next two years.

No team which has Jim McMillian and Heyward Dotson can fail to finish near the top, but after faltering this season, it is questionable whether Columbia can beat out both Princeton and Penn. The Lions lose more by graduation and gain less from their upcoming sophomores than do either the Tigers or the Quakers.

None of the other five teams is likely to make a run for the top spot, although Dartmouth and Yale do not lose a single player by graduation. Cornell, able to make it into first division this year, had virtually all of its strength in the senior class, and may give way to the Indians or the Elis.

Neither Harvard nor Brown is ever more than a threat to stage an occasional upset, but it is worth remembering that the Bruins had a 13-point lead on Princeton and barely lost to Columbia by a point. As was the case this winter, when Penn defeated Columbia at the Palestra, a second division Ivy team is always a potential victor over a title-minded opponent, and can affect the final outcome more dramatically than the favorites do when they battle among themselves.

CAREER HIGH IN A LOSING CAUSE: The 28 points junior John Hummer made against St. John's Saturday were the most he has scored in his two seasons of varsity competition. He was responsible for 44% of Tigers' total as they were eliminated in first-round NCAA play by 72-63 defeat.

A WRESTLING WEEKEND

Eastern Toornament Here. Sixteen teams will compete in the 65th annual Eastern Intercollegiate Wrestling Association Championships in Jadwin Gymnasium this weekend. While the Princeton community has a faithful segment of fans who follow the sport, they may be outnumbered by residents of Bethlehem, Pa., who will turn out in large numbers in the hope that Lehigh will replace Navy as the team champion.

Preliminary rounds will start at 1 Friday afternoon, with the quarter-finals that night at 8. The semi-finals are scheduled for Saturday at 12:30 and the finals—climaxed in each case by recognition of the winner as the individual champion—will begin Saturday at 8.

Princeton's strongest entry is a sophomore, Allen Uyeda, who finished the season undefeated in the 130-lb. class, including a victory over his opponent at Lehigh. He is favored to reach the finals, possibly against Dale Stahl, a junior at Navy.

The Tigers also have a pro-

A Tradition Dies: No Ball Game in June

When Princeton's alumni stage their annual parade on Saturday, June 7, it will mark the first time in many decades that plans will not be made to climax the affair with a baseball game.

Although eventual demise of the tradition became apparent when an alumni-varsity contest was scheduled in 1967 to replace the long-standing visit of Yale to the reunion weekend scene, an alumni game was on the agenda last June. It was cancelled in deference to the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, whose funeral train passed through Princeton Junction that day.

Instead of marching down Prospect Street to sun-baked Clarke Field, alumni classes followed a quieter, shadier route on campus and finished with a brief gathering in front of picturesque Blair Arch. The innovation proved popular (one member of the Class of 1915 wrote to the Alumni Weekly to report that if the ball game were re instated, he would urge his class to drop out when the parade left the campus) and the baseball season has now been arranged to end in mid-May.

In all, the Tigers will play 23 games, opening here (hopefully) on Saturday, March 29, with adoubleheader against Maine. The first of nine Eastern Intercollegiate League games is set for April 12 against Brown.

The complete schedule:
March 29, Maine (2 games).
April 3, Manhattan; 4, Rochester; 5, New Hampshire; 7, N.Y.U.; 10, Temple, away; 12, Brown (); 15, Rutgers, away; 16, Lafayette; 19, Navy (), away; 23, Villanova, away; 24, St. John's; 26, Dartmouth (), away; 30, Pennsylvania ().
May 2, Fordham; 3, Harvard (); 5, Seton Hall, away; 7, Army (); 10, Yale (), away; 13, Rutgers; 14, Columbia (); 17, Cornell (*), away.
* Eastern League game.

The Tigers' lacrosse team will also open March 29 against Maryland, facing such other rugged opponents as John Hopkins, Navy and Army before going into Ivy action. Both the baseball and lacrosse teams will end their schedules against Cornell at Ithaca on May 17, the spring season thus coming to an end here earlier than at any time in the current century.

The lacrosse schedule:
March 29, Maryland.
April 5, Johns Hopkins, away; 12, Navy; 16, Army, away; 19, Brown (); 26, Dartmouth (); 30, Pennsylvania (*), away.
May 3, Harvard (); 10, Yale (), away; 13, Rutgers; 17, Cornell (*) away.
* Ivy League game

mising heavyweight in sophomore Chuck Dressel, who won 10 of his 12 bouts this season. He will, however, have stiff competition from more experienced wrestlers in the unlimited division.

In addition to Lehigh, Navy and Princeton, association members who will enter full teams include Army, Colgate, Columbia, Cornell, Franklin & Marshall, Harvard, Penn (the Ivy champion), Penn State, Pittsburgh, Rutgers, Syracuse, Temple and Yale. The tournament has not been staged here since 1960, when Penn State and Pitt tied for the team title with 61 points apiece.

PHS WINS LAST ONE

"Corner Turned," Says Ivan.

"Next year will be the turning point: there's no question about it. We've really turned the corner.

"We'll be the Big Tigers. No more Little Tigers. I think you'll see a big reversal next year. As a staff, we can see it coming."

Thus, at the conclusion of another dismal season, which ended on a happy note last week with Princeton High School defeating Hopewell Valley, 73-69, Little Tiger coach Larry Ivan expressed his confidence that there would be a turn-around in the sport at PHS. It is needed.

The Hopewell Valley victory was only number two this season in which PHS lost 21. During the first two years under Ivan's tutelage, in which Larry has tried to introduce a new system of play stressing defense—which he admits is difficult for a high school player more geared to a style of shoot, shoot, shoot, to adpat to—his teams won five and lost 40.

"We were very pleased to win the last one," said Ivan. "The team looked very good. The nice thing about it," he added, "was the nice turnout. It was about equally divided between parents and students."

Throughtout the season, Ivan has repeatedly acknowledged his gratefulness to the students and followers of the team for supporting it faithfully, despite the team's record.

In the finale, Billy Brooks, the team's leading scorer, ended his high school career with 17 points. Paul Riddell added 15 and Jeff Haring 13. Fritz Loats and Bob Kennedy had nine each.

For a change, PHS was not hampered by a poor performance at the foul line as it converted 19 of 23 free throws. Hopewell Valley ended with a 7-17 record.

Play Last Game. Seniors who played their last game are Bill Brooks, John Madden — fifth among all scorers in Mercer County as a junior — Fritz Loats — a transfer student from Illinois — Bill Nelson, Robert Kennedy, John Gredy, John Peterson, Tim Rollings and Leighton Newlin.

Heading a list of returnees will be Jeff Haring and Tim Taggart — both of whom started in the first game against Ewing — and the 6-4 Riddell. Riddell, who saw limited service on the varsity as a sophomore, spent the entire year, except for the last two games, on the jayvee team which he led to an 18-3 record.

Also back will be Bob Sweeney, former St. Paul's star who teamed up with Riddell on the jayvee team, and Jeff Grover. Pete Smagorinsky, 6-5, will give the Little Tigers rebounding height. Gene Holland and John Schmidt will also be back.

"When we start next year on November 15 we won't be trying to learn a whole new concept. Instead of five learning offense and five learning how to play defense, three of four already know it. This will be Paul's third year and Sweeney's second," said Ivan. "The whole system is sound now."

LITTLEST LITTLE TIGER: Senior John Gredy, who has played his last game for the Princeton High School basketball team, was the smallest player on the squad at 5-9. He joins eight others who will graduate in June.

One reason why Ivan feels that his long range planning will bear fruit next year is his belief that he now has a sound foundation. "It's there," he said. "That's why we approached it the way we did." For a comparison, he points out that the year before, the jayvee, freshman and varsity teams won a total of six games. This year, while the varsity has won one less, the jayvee team has won 18 and the freshmen seven, an improvement four times over.

New Schedule, Too. One plus has already been engineered for the 1969-70 squad. The schedule will be less taxing than the previous ones. Dropped have been the three parochial schools, Cathedral, Notre Dame and St. Anthony's. Commenting that basketball is the number one sport at these schools, Ivan announced they had been replaced with three public schools.

Next season, he said, PHS will play Hopewell Valley twice. "There's a good rivalry there. They were pleased about it and so were we." Hopewell Valley is a Group 3 school, a group which PHS, currently a Group 4 institution, will join in the not too distant future.

Right now, according to Ivan, the decision where to place PHS is "up in the air." But, he observed, with the phasing out of all sending districts nearing completion, PHS is "definitely getting smaller." Classification is based on male enrollment.

Similiarly, PHS will play Lawrence High twice next year Lawrence, like Hopewell Valley, is a Group 3 school, and because of its proximity is a natural rival of the Little Tigers.

Another newcomer next year will be Hunterdon Central. "They re not too far and they will be on a par with us," said Ivan. He reported that PHS had also tried hard to get a game with Cedar Ridge, a new school in Madison Township. "They only had one open date, however, and we couldn't work it out," he added.

A sound system, a firm foundation, a good returning nucelus, a less taxing schedule — will it all add up to a turnaround? Ivan and the Little Tigers will be up for the third time next year and all eyes will be watching to see if they strike out.

HUN WINS FINALE

To Share League Title. Most schools would he quite happy to finish 17-3, which was Hun School's overall mark this season in basketball.

But two of those defeats were "must" wins for Hun and left the team with bittersweet memories of what might have been. Hun's 67-63 defeat last week at the hands of Pingry cost it the New Jersey Class B Prep School Championship. An earlier upset by Germantown Friends cost Hun outright ownership of the Penn-Jersey League crown of which Hun was defending champion.

Following Hun's final 94-82 victory over George School here Friday afternoon and Germantown's win over Perkiomen, both schools ended in a tie for league honors. Each had compiled a fine 13-1 record.

From the outset, it was evident that this was going to be a big year for Hun on the court. Coach Dave Leete had all five starters back from a team that had won the title the year before.

N. Y. Giants Help Harvard Win in Track

In the triangular track meet which dedicated Jadwin Gymnasium on March 1, Yale was declared the upset victor over Harvard, 52 to 51. Depending on the decision which the two universities reach, the victory may now go to the Crimson, 53 to 52.

Twenty-four hours before the meet took place, 245-lb. tackle Tim McCann signed a contract to try out next summer with the New York Giants. Under intercollegiate interpretation of such an act, he immediately became a professional and was ineligible for further competition in any sport while at Princeton.

Next day, McCann represented the Tigers in the meet, placing third in the 35-lb. weight throw. The two points in Princeton's final total of 34 had a major bearing on the outcome because two Harvard entries finished fourth and fifth behind McCann.

Under the scoring rules in a triangular meet, first place is worth 5 points, second, 3; third, 2; and fourth, 1. If McCann's third place effort is cancelled and Harvard's two men move up one notch apiece, the Crimson's resultant two-point increase gives it a one-point victory over Yale in the final standings.

Expressing his regrets that McCann's unawareness of the rules had a bearing on the final score, Director of Athletics R. Kenneth Fairman said final determination of the winner rested between Harvard and Yale. From the Tigers' point of view, it was fortunate that they remained third with 32 points rather than 34.

All five—Captain Don Silverson, Nat Williams, the team's center and leading rebounder; Herm Szeker, and guards Mike Maguire and Mike Rossi — could and often did shoot the eyes out of the basket. On several occasions Hun scored 90 or more points this season and in a game with Pennington it reached 101—believed to be the first time Hun has topped the century mark.

Against George in Friday's final game, Hun seemed at the half to be well on the way to one of its patented routs. In the second period, Szeker scored 11 points, Williams 10 and Silverson 8 to trigger a 33 point outburst and leave Hun comfortably ahead, 55-32.

At the start of the second half, Leete pulled his two juniors—Maguire and Rossi—and inserted Steve Brooks and Bob Johnson, an all-senior lineup. He substituted freely there after.

George Whittles Away. But with 5:10 remaining in the contest, Leete and his benched regulars were squirming. George School (6-8), catching Hun napping and basket hanging, had narrowed the gap to 79-66. "It's down to 13 points, coach," said one player from the bench.

Leete sent Williams and Silverson back in. But by now George School had caught fire and the whiff of an upset. With as little as 1:22 remaining, the score was 88-80 and Hun was fighting for its share of the crown, playing for the one shot.

A tap in by Williams under the basket and some pressure foul shooting in the final minute cooled off George and protected the win. Williams finished with 26 points. Silverson had 20, Szeker 19, Maguire 12 and Rossi 10.

bles. Hun fell behind 20-12 in the first period when Pingry shot a hot 9-for-17.

Hun fought back and went ahead briefly in the second period by one on a basket by Williams. Then in the third period, Hun narrowed the margin to two. But it could never quite overcome the towering presence of 6-7 center Dave Clausen, 6-5 Leon Adams and 6-4 Jim Corbett. As a result, Pingry was able to dominate the backboards and tap in several missed shots.

In addition, Hun's usual accuracy deserted it as the Red and Black hit on only 32% of its shots. Leete, however, refused to attribute Hun's loss to Pingry's height and rebounding. "We had several chances to catch them but our rallies fell short," he said. "We just didn't play as well as we can."

Like Hun, Pingry had played together as a unit for a long time. "This club was undefeated as a freshman team and we waited three long years for this," said Pingry coach Dave Allen. The win was only Pingry's eleventh against seven setbacks. Many of the seven losses were against northern New Jersey powers, however, which might prompt one to say, "It's not who you beat but who you play," that counts.

And next year for Hun? Leete will be losing height in Silverson and Williams, but there is no need to shed any tears for him. He has returning, as a nucelus, Maguire and Rossi, who will represent, with little argument, the two finest guards in the league next year. "They've been playing together for two years now," said Leete.

In addition, Leete has some promising material moving up from the Jayvees. In short, Hun will be in the thick of it again in the league, which next year will be split into two divisions.

10-5 MARK RECORDED

By PDS Hockey Team. Inability to defeat again a team which it had knocked off, 5-1, a few days earlier, cost the Princeton Day School hockey team a chance to win the Wissahickon tournament Saturday, but the Panthers bounced back to take their afternoon contest and finished the 1969 season with a highly creditable 10-5 mark. The squad was 6-5-1 a year ago.

Last Wednesday the Blue and White had no trouble on its own ice, beating the Wissahickon Hockey Club, 5-1, as it produced its best all-around game of the year, according to coach Harry Rulon-Miller. "We were strong in every respect," Rulon-Miller commented. "We took advantage of every opportunity."

Rob O'Conner led the scoring with two goals, followed by John Moore, Jim Rodgers and Deebs Young, all of whom had one. Rulon-Miller praised goalie Tom O'Conner for playing an intelligent game in the nets.

On Saturday, back on its ice, Wissahickon proved a tough foe in the first round of its tournament. After a scoreless first period, the home team got a goal early in the second, and kept the advantage into the middle of the third.

PDS's Jim Rodgers tied the contest at that point, and the Blue and White began to press for another. It was Wissahickon that came up with the winning marker, however, scoring with just 18 seconds left. PDS pulled its goalie in an attempt to tie, but the winners slapped an insurance goal into the empty nets, resulting in a 3-1 final.

Later in the day PDS faced Cranford Hockey Club in a consolation game, and won going away, 8-2. The first period was close, but Cranford skaters began to tire, thereafter, as they had played a first round game at 10 that morning, while PDS had played at 8 a.m. Jim Rodgers had his best day of the season, scoring four times.

Last Monday, in a fairly dull contest, the Panthers blanked Beacon Hill, 3-0, with Robbie Holt, Peter McCandless and Rob O'Conner each scoring. Art-tie Mittnacht played a fine fore-checking game.

PANTHERS' HIGH SCORER: Junior Jim Rodgers slapped in 16 goals and added 10 assists, good for 26 points to lead the Princeton Day School hockey team in scoring this season from his position on defense.

The Blue and White loses only two players through graduation this year, co-captains Bill Chalverus and Rob O'Conner, and Rulon-Miller is keeping his fingers crossed that he doesn't lose any players through transfers to New England prep schools.

Chalverus and O'Conner will not be easy to replace, however; not only did they account for a third of the team's scoring, but Rulon-Miller credits them with providing the leadership which greatly contributed to such a successful season. O'Conner ended the season with 12 goals and 13 assists, second by one point to Jim Rodgers, who finished with 16 goals and 10 assists.

GAME POSTPONED

For PDS Basketball Team. Last Friday's snow and resulting complications forced postponement of the scheduled basketball game between Princeton Day School and Stevens Academy of Hoboken.

Coach Chancey Jones was not sure on Monday whether the game would be rescheduled or not. If not, the Panthers will finish the season with a 5-9 record.

FIRMS INVITED

To Join Softball League. The Princeton Business Softball League has extended an invitation to any firm or business to join the league for the 1969 season.

The league is slo-pitch, with all games played on Tuesdays, starting as soon after work as possible. The season runs from early in May until the middle of August. Further information may be obtained by writing to Thomas J. Ward, RCA Laboratories, Princeton.

SECTIONAL TROPHY WON

By Youngest Flying Fish. The 10 and under girls of Princeton's Flying Fish won a trophy for finishing first over eight other teams in the Central Atlantic Area Northern Sectionals held las week at the Summit YMCA pool.

Kris Reeves captured three gold medals for winning the 50-yard freestyle, the 25-yard breaststroke and as a member of the victorious 100-yard medley relay team comprised of Carol McGrath, Dede O'Hara, Carol Wagner and herself. Carol won the 100-yard individual medley in 1:21.8.

What's the catch? There isn't any.
1799* is the suggested retail price of the port of entry for the VW sedan.
The price includes the Federal excise tax and import duty.
It also includes the built-in heater/defroster, windshield washer, electric windshield wipers, outside rearview mirror, padded dash, front seat headrests, and seat belts front and back.
Not to mention the new electric rear-window defogger and the new ignition/steering lock. (When the key is removed, the steering wheel is locked in place.)
It's the price of the real thing, not a stripped-down economy model.
What else do you have to pay?
The charge for transporting the car from the port of entry. The dealer delivery charge. And local sales tax.
There is one optional that makes a lot of sense. The automatic stick shift. It eliminates the clutch pedal.
Well, that's it.
Unless, of course, you count the cost of gas and oil it takes you to get here in your present car.

'TRIPLE' IN QUAIL HUNT

Ooe Shot, Three Birds. Harland F. ("Pink") Baker of 28 E. Stanworth Drive hit three birds in a rising covey of quail with one shot last week in Charleston, S.C.

Baker has hunted waterfowl and upland game and shot clay pigeons for 48 years. "Getting the hat trick in quail shooting may be even more unusual than a hole in one is for a golfer," Baker reported. "Hitting the triple on a bird hunt is the ultimate, as no gun in the United States is allowed to hold more than three shells."

GRADUATION SET

By Dog Training Club. The Princeton Dog Training Club will hold graduation exercises at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Community Park School gym. Approximately 30 dogs will compete for trophies.

News Of The CHURCHES

POVERTY IS THEME

Of Exhibit, Talks. "The Poor People," a collection of photographs by Ulli Steltzer, is on display this week in the basement of St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church in conjunction with studies by the St. Paul's school children and the Lenten program of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrina. The exhibit will be open to the public from 8:30 a.m. until 6 p.m. this Sunday.

Mrs. Steltzer will talk informally about the subjects of her photographs at 3 p.m. on Sunday. The photographs are available for sale, with proceeds allocated to the subject of the picture sold. Refreshments will be served.

Richard Karp of the Cultural Center, Princeton and Pennington Avenues, Trenton, will also be present at 3 Sunday to discuss ways of helping the disadvantaged. The Cultural Center cares for 300 children on a day care basis. It is managed by the Rev. Richard Thibeau under the sponsorship of the Trenton diocese.

PRE-TEENS ARE TOPIC

Of Community Panel. "Looking Ahead To The Teens" will be discussed from various points of view by an adult panel at 8 p.m. on Tuesday in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

The sponsors are the youth committee of the Princeton Chamber of Commerce, the Princeton Area Committee on Sex Education; the Council of Community Services, the teenage concerns committee of Youth Associates, Inc. and the Princeton Pastors Association.

Panelists are Sister Mary Bush, headmistress of the Stuart Country Day School of the Sacred Heart; Mrs. Betty Bailey, nursery school teacher; Mrs. Sarah Harris of the Princeton Regional Middle Schools and Philip Cobb, assistant principal of the John Witherspoon School.

FAMILY PLAN SUCCEEDS

At Church School. First Presbyterian Church, which last fall put its Christian education program on a family-oriented basis, reports that attendance at the Sunday classes has increased ten percent over last year.

More than 200 parents contributed four Sundays to the program, attending the children's classes, reviewing material and often supplying imaginative suggestions to the professional staff.

The response to the new program, according to the Rev. Eliot Daley, writing in the church publication, "First," has been a surprise. "The enrollment now taxes to the extreme our physical facilities, and any further substantial growth in the program is going to require our taking a hard look at our capabilities."

Parental experiences, he noted, ranged from "excruciating to exhilarating," depending upon the department and the parents involved.

"As everyone (parents, children, teachers, ministers) has groped toward making satisfyingly operative the basic convictions underlying the program, there have been obvious problems in terms of pre-class orientation, classroom roles and post-class follow-through.

"But the basic goodwill with which the program has been approached will make it, ultimately, the most promising Christian education program in the nation — if the dozens of letters of inquiry from around the nation are any indication."

One of the strengths of the program, the Rev. Mr. Daley noted, is that the classes have stabilized. The teaching staff has devoted more time to class preparation than anticipated. "It is not unusual for a lead teacher to spend nearly 20 hours per week at the tasks of arranging the room, securing curriculum and teaching aids, securing and coordinating parental participation, attending education workshops with the staff, compiling attendance data, adjusting activities to mesh with choirs, etc. ad infinitum."

He noted that the program coordinator, David Jones, has invested "well over double the amount of time we expected—while bringing well over double the amount of competence we had any right to expect.

"David Jones has been the architect and prime contractor on a project of education that would have given ulcers to many an experienced superintendent. (Let's face it — how many other educational systems would willingly invite every second of teaching time to be critically monitored by hundreds of parents?)"

He believes the program needs improved parent orientation in the form of meetings, and a new parents' handbook. He suggests a newsletter to standardize class to-home communication, and "greater discrimination in the discerning and utilizing of parents' talents for contributing to the classroom phase of Christian education.

"Perhaps the best summary at this point is the observation that no participant has yet suggested that we return to the ways of others years . . ."

BAKE SALE SET

To Benefit Poverty Film. The youth fellowship of Calvary Baptist Church is sponsoring a bake sale on Saturday in the Princeton Shopping Center Mall. Hours are 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The funds will be used to help finance a film on the impact of affluence and poverty upon urban and suburban living conditions. The youth group hopes to make the film available to other church, civic and social organizations in the Princeton community.

LUNCHEON-MEETING SET

By Women's Association. The annual Sacrificial Luncheon of the Women's Association of First Presbyterian Church will be held at noon on Monday, March 15. Dr. Robert H. White-Stevens will speak on the subject "Hunger: The Paradox on Plenty." The program begins at 1.

Dr. White-Stevens is assistant director of research and development in the Agricultural Division of American Cyanamid Company. A native of England, and a world traveler, he will illustrate his talk with slides.

Mrs. John L. Cullen, Association president, in announcing the luncheon, emphasized the timeliness of the program topic and urged women to read the Paul Ehrlic article, "World Population: Is the Battle Lost?" in the February issue of Reader's Digest. She also called attention to the prediction in "Famine — 1975!" by William and Paul Paddock, "The time of famine will be upon us full-scale in 1975."

Luncheon reservations, at $1, may be made through the Women's Association circles, or through Mrs. Carla Bunting of the church office, 924-0103.

JESUIT TO SPEAK

On Blondel Philosophy. The Rev. James M. Somerville, S.J., editor of the International Philosophical Quarterly of Fordham University, will give a public lecture at 1:45 on Monday, March 24, in the Stevenson Lounge of the Princeton Seminary campus center. His topic is "The Philosophy of Maurice Blondel."

Fr. Somerville was the 1961 recipient of the Catholic Press Association award for scholarly publications. He was one of the first expositors of Blondel's phenomenology in this country, and is the author of "Total Commitment: Blondel's 'L'Action.'"

ST. PAUL'S GAINS

In Quest for CYO Title. A narrow 42-40 win over Holy Angels gave St. Paul's a first round advantage in the double elimination playoffs now in progress to decide the Mercer County CYO championship.

The winners jumped out to a 24-15 halftime lead over the Angels, but led by only six at the end of three quarters. The losers managed to narrow the gap to two, but Kevin Tylus came up with 10 of his game high 21 points to insure the victory.

St. Paul's was scheduled to meet St. Vincent dePaul Wednesday night in the second round of the playoffs, with future games still to be decided.

St. Paul's wrapped up the Southern Division title for the third time in four years with wins over Immaculate Conception, 46-36, and St. James, 37-30. Against I.C. St. Paul's rolled to a 27-7 lead at halftime, and coasted the rest of the way. Tylus was high with 25 points. Guy Bertone had 7, Dan Colluccio, 6 and Mickey O'Donnell and Keith Ebrahim, four apiece.

St. James, the only team to beat St. Paul's during the regular season, almost pulled off another upset, as it led until midway into the third period. Bertone then scored to give the winners a lead they never lost. Tylus, of course, was high scorer with 18.

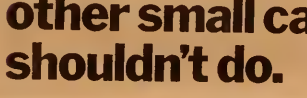
It does things other small cars shouldn't do.



Cornering at high speeds is one of the last things to expect small cars to do, successfully. Unless it's a SAAB, the out-of-the-ordinary small car. Out of the ordinary because it has front-wheel drive. So it doesn't push you around like others do. It pulls you around corners, curves and other drivers' mistakes. Is that all SAAB has? Not on your life. Most ordinary cars don't give you, even as options, all the standard SAAB safety features. As an optional extra, our new V-4 engine has a LIFETIME GUARANTEE.

SAAB

You can drive it like a big car.
